

BREAKING WAYDE'S RECORD

19.59

It was bound to happen: with golden boy Wayde van Niekerk out of action it was only a matter of time before a challenger for his 200m South African record came along - and did it ever.

CLARENCE MUNYAI shattered it at the SA Track and Field Championships at Tuks Stadium, stopping the clock at a jaw-dropping 19,59 secs - the 10th fastest time in the world.

In the process he knocked

0,15 secs off the 19,84 mark Van Niekerk set last year.

The 20-year-old sprinter was as shocked at his achievement as his peers. He wasn't expecting to go that fast, Munyai said.

"I thought I had a 19,80 in my legs. I knew the conditions were going to be good and I saw people running really fast times. I told myself to put on a show."

And he did just that.
