

Mzizi aims to carry on

► A source close to former Kaizer Chiefs and Free State Stars midfielder Lucky Mzizi (above) has informed Phakaaathi that the midfielder still believes he has what it takes to play two more seasons in top-flight football, despite being 32-years old. Mzizi, who was a promising youngster at Chiefs under Ted Dumitru saw his career go down the drain after leaving the club and ending up playing for Thanda Royal Zulu, University of Pretoria and Free State Stars. "It is very difficult for him, but he is very strong. He has been playing amateur football in the last two years, but he believes he can still play in the PSL. There are also financial troubles like any former star who earned a lot of money and ended up with nothing," said the source. The source further revealed there is an ABC Motsepe League side who are interested in Mzizi and he could turn out for them next season.
