BARTLETT SIGNS NEW TUKS DEAL

University of Pretoria head coach, Shaun Bartlett, has put pen to paper on a new long-term deal with the club, as he aims to guide the team to promotion to South Africa's top tier.

The former Golden Arrows coach joined University of Pretoria in January 2016, following Tuks' relegation from the PSL. Subsequently, in his first full season in charge, his side ended the 2016/17 campaign in 12th place on the NFD standings.

Now, with Bartlett in charge for the new season, it has been confirmed to the Siya crew that Bartlett has committed his future to the club as he once again looks to fight for topflight football.

Siya sources have indicated that the coach has put pen to paper on a three-year contract, as the former Bafana Bafana striker put together a squad that can challenge for honours.

Called for comment, the coach's representative, John Wilson, confirmed to the Siya crew that Bartlett had extended his stay with Tuks, however, would not divulge any further details. "Yes, he has put pen to paper," Wilson stated.

Tuks have played two league games so far this season, drawing one and losing the other, and sit in 14th place on the log standings.
