THAT'S IT, STEVE!

Let me take this opportunity and thank Mr English (Steve Komphela) for the heart attacks that he has caused the Amakhosi faithful. Three seasons without silverware at Chiefs is heartbreaking! If you think that you can put your hands on the Nedbank Cup, banish the thought, Mr Komphela. Please be like Eric Tinkler and resign. Enough is enough, you have brought enough drought to Naturena.

Nghamula Rikhotso-Nkon'wani, Mageva village ka Dzumeri

I still can't understand why Steve Komphela still fields Willard Katsande and Wiseman Meyiwa in the same line-up. It limits our attacking options. He consistently does this and, in the latter stages of the game when we are desperate, he introduces Hendrick Ekstein. Why not start with Ekstein and when we want to protect a lead then we can introduce a defensive player? Another thing, Erick Mathoho always gives us options with set-pieces. We always knew that whenever we struggled with goals in open play, he'd give us a goal sometimes. Sipehele Ntshangase has made passes that have been missing since Remeilwe Letsholonyane left.

Clive, Tshwane

Chiefs spent the entire first half doing nothing. We had two shots – the first one went wide and the second one was saved. Both were from set plays. That sums up our first half. This shows a serious lack of creativity. Even the way Leonardo Castro is played is a serious source of concern because you find him going deep trying to get the ball and when he finds it, there is no one upfront to receive it. We are not only frustrated because we don't score but the type of football that we are playing is substandard as well. I personally feel that we

Chiefs fans call for Belgian coach

"Amakhosi supporters are calling for Head Coach Steve Komphela to quit or for the club to terminate his contract. Kaizer Chiefs seem to be out of the league race after they drew 0-0 against AmaZulu this past weekend.

Belgian coach Luc Eymael would be a good replacement for Komphela. Eymael has a buyout clause in his contract and previously acknowledged interest from abroad in his services – however, he has downplayed talk that he is on Kaizer Chiefs' and SuperSport United's radars. I hope that Chiefs makes a decision on the coach soon, because the results are not what we expect."

Jabulani Zulu: Percy Tau is a massive talent. But what impresses me the most is his work ethic. He has the never-say-die attitude; he runs the whole 90+ minutes. Even when he misses some goal-scoring chances, he keeps on trying and he never gives up or gets scared. And the added advantage is he doesn't get injured, and I hope it stays that way. Tau is the best we have at the moment.

Vincent Vusi Mazibuko: I'm sure if we speak out enough about how we feel about having him as our coach at Chiefs, the club will eventually show him the door! Eish, Steve must go.

Musa Mabika: I'm so glad to see our South African players making moves overseas such as Mokotjo, Dolly, Mothiba, Zungu, Ndlovu, Serero. Only Lebo Manyama I'm not sure about. I don't know if he's still playing or he's planning to come back South Africa.

@vuyosimawo: All the best. Ryan Sports is an attack-minded good side, but I believe in the seven time @OfficialPSL champions, all the best. Interesting starting line-up. God bless you boys.

@Pirates1stlady: Those Pirates 9 draws! Looking back, 6 of those we should've easily won! Unbelievable bottling in the first round! Shocking misses! People ballboning the ball from 5 yards out, it was frustrating to watch!

Ronaldo retires without having watched him live that would be my biggest regret.

@Sikhomo23: Sundowns is through yet again to the CAFCL.

@pjay005: Musa Nyatama has been a good addition. I was unsure at first, but here we are.

@tdyani: I don't have any regrets in life but if Cristiano need to let go of players who are not producing the results, find a suitable playmaker and let go of the coach. Enough is enough. We need to be serious now. The league chase is over!

Wire, Keiskammahook

I don't think that Chiefs will win any trophy this season, as they are no more invincible. There is no creativity in the middle. There is nothing coming from the strikers. Even if you were to bring in Cristiano Ronaldo, he would not score for Chiefs. I can name a number of strikers who were in hot form for their teams but failed dismally at Chiefs. The whole squad needs an overhaul.

Mbuyiselo Masuku

I don't know what to say about Steve Komphela anymore! He is playing at home and trying to close the gap between him and Mamelodi Sundowns, yet he chose to start the game with a defensive team. Steve, please just allow somebody else to take over the team. Philani Zulu decided he will never cross the ball, but you still prefer him. Wiseman Meyiwa is passing sideways, yet you still prefer him. You claim that you are tired of the draws but we all know that come the next game the same team that has been drawing games will take to the field.

Phoka Mika, Witbank

I am very disappointed and confused about my favourite team Chiefs. What's happening there? Is it the players or the coach? Twelve draws is too much for a team like Chiefs. They look like they don't care about winning the league anymore and just playing to be in the Top Eight. I think it's time to change the coach because he doesn't have another plan when the team isn't scoring. We the supporters are a laughing stock to our rivals. Enough is enough now.

Quick One-Two's

Congratulations to Mamelodi Sundowns for qualifying to the group stages of the CAF Champions League. Even though they were supposed to score a lot of goals in the second half of the game, but the two goals were enough to take the team to the next stage. Sundowns are hoisting the South African football flag high on the African continent, which is a good omen for our national team. Congratulations to their neighbours SuperSport United as well for going through in the Confederation Cup. I wish one of the Soweto teams can follow suit and assist Downs on the African sojourns.

Terah Maqepula, Mt Fletcher

The defeat of Platinum Stars by Bloemfontein Celtic can decide their future in the Absa Premiership because it was a must-win for them. Celtic were on top of them throughout the game and Stars look like they have already thrown in the towel. Their body language says a lot and they don't show hunger and determination to move away from the relegation zone. I thought that they would start with Bongani Ntuli upfront because they didn't have firepower in their striking force. To me, Platinum Stars' obituary is ready and it will be read soon.

My favourite is Doctor's column

Sibusiso Zuma – Former Bafana Bafana striker

"I read Soccer Laduma whenever I get a chance to. My favourite part of the paper is Doctor Khumalo's column. He always has interesting things to say and they are factual. It's always nice to know what other legends of the game think and, also, the knowledge they share with others can help improve our game. It's better when the information is acquired from a former soccer player that has already paved the way for current and upcoming players, especially one like Doc. I would definitely recommend the paper to soccer lovers. I mean, there's no better way to keep yourself updated about what's happening in the world of football other than Soccer Laduma. You guys are very informative and top quality."

Madimetja Vic Mashamaite, Renstown

Orlando Pirates are my favourite team, but they never cease to amaze me with their sometimes hot, sometimes cold performances. Sometimes instead of going to the stadiums, I give it a miss, for my wellbeing. Yes, we may be breathing heavily on PSL pacesetters Mamelodi Sundowns' neck, but with such mediocre performances, it's not easy to bet on my team.

Call it betray of loyalty if you like. I would rather go to a watering hole or go shopping for new kiddies' clothes. On a different note, winning three Man of the Match accolades jut shows that our secret assassin Musa Nyatama is on fire. I thought a national call up was beckoning but, well, it seems the boy hasn't done enough to please the coach. Last word to my Bucs: a league is a marathon not a 100m race. Please bear that in mind or else we will end another season with nothing to put inside our dust-gathering cabinet.

McDivett (Mac) Khumbulani Tshehla, Halfway House

It is now clear the league is for Mamelodi Sundowns to lose, as they are favourites. Orlando Pirates are in the picture but remain unlikely, but it will be good for the Buccaneers to put up a fight. I'd love to see the top three teams challenging for honours next season, not this Sundowns dominance. It needs to be stopped.
