The University of Pretoria Museums has a diverse sculptural collection on public display. The sculpture route provides an easy map for you to explore, engage and experience on your own time and pace, taking you the campus visitor, student, staff or visiting academic outdoors. In total, there are more than forty different public sculptures displayed across campuses of the University of Pretoria. More than twenty-eight of which are located right here on the Hatfield campus. These sculptures in all their diversity are made by distinguished South African artists such as Izaac Seoka, Guy du Toit, Angus Van Zyl Taylor, Anton Smit and Abraham Makhabula among others.

We invite you to stroll around or meander along the sculpture route. This route hopes to humanise campus spaces and stimulate thought, debate and engagement in celebrating museum collections beyond walls as cultural and artistic hubs of creativity.

Enjoy, appreciate and admire some of these magnificent contemporary and classical works dotted along the green campus landscape, some are in the beautiful gardens and grounds as well as among the historical buildings and some located near new state-of-the-art buildings, such as those leading to the Javett-UP onto South Campus. The sculpture route starts and ends at the University of Pretoria Museums.
