REGULATIONS FOR UNDERGRADUATE QUALIFICATIONS

New system of teaching and learning

In the year 2000, the University of Pretoria phased in a new system of teaching and learning which meets the requirements of and uses the guidelines set by SAQA (the South African Qualifications Authority) and the NQF (the National Qualifications Framework). This new system consists of outcomes-based and market-oriented learning programmes. In this booklet, Regulations and Syllabi for Undergraduate Qualifications, you will find detailed information on the programmes that are now offered in the Faculty of Humanities.

1. REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

1.1 Minimum requirements

To register for a programme culminating in a first degree, candidates must hold a valid grade 12-certificate with university exemption. Where relevant, candidates must also meet special requirements for admission to certain programmes and packages as required by the admission regulations and faculty regulations that apply to the faculties and departments concerned.

1.2 Applying for admission

Students who want to register at the University of Pretoria for the first time, or wish to reregister after a break in their studies, must apply for admission. Applications for admission to programmes which culminate in a first degree must reach the University by 30 September of the year preceding study. However, for programmes where there is selection and which culminate in career-specific qualifications, the final application date is 30 June of the year preceding study.

Candidates may also be expected to pass an admission test and to undergo language and computer skills assessments.

1.3 Symbols obtained

Candidates who register at the University for the first time must present an official record of the symbols which they were awarded for their subjects in the grade 12-examination.

1.4 Conditional exemption

Candidates who have not achieved university exemption may be considered for admission on the merits of each individual case, provided that they:

- (i) hold at least a three-year tertiary qualification (higher education qualification) obtained at an institution other than the University of Pretoria;
- (ii) have been awarded a certificate (at another institution) accepted by the University as equivalent to a matriculation certificate with university exemption;
- (iii) have graduated from another tertiary institution or were previously admitted as a graduate of such an institution;
- (iv) pass an entrance examination as required by the University of Pretoria.

Note:

Candidates cannot be admitted to a degree programme on the basis of a conditional exemption certificate. Some faculties do admit candidates with a certificate of conditional exemption on the basis of their age for specified programmes. Candidates are advised to contact the faculty administration of the faculties concerned.

The Senate reserves the right to limit the number of students permitted to register for a particular degree programme. In such cases, the Dean of the faculty concerned, selects the students who are admitted from the pool of candidates who meet the requirements.

1.5 Selection

Students are only admitted to the following degree programmes subject to their being selected for the programmes:

B SocSci specializing in Social Work

Students must be selected for admission to the second-year level. Candidates are selected on the basis of their academic marks, their results in psychometric tests and a personal interview. Students who have completed part of a programme in Social Work at other universities must also undergo selection for continued studies at UP. Information is available from the package co-ordinator concerned.

B Communication Pathology

Candidates who have been provisionally selected, must participate in group tests and an interview on a specified date (usually during August of the year preceding study). The final selection is done on the basis of the results of the tests and interviews. More details are available from the package co-ordinator.

BA in the Arts

Students who have been provisionally selected for the Music package, must complete a further practical test. The date for the test is arranged in consultation with the package co-ordinator.

Students who have been provisionally selected for the Visual Arts i.e. Fine Arts and Information Design, must complete a further theoretical and practical test before the start of the academic year. The date for these tests is arranged in consultation with the package co-ordinator.

B Psych

Candidates who want to be considered for the B Psych programme, can apply for this programme during the course of their second year of study. Application forms can be obtained from the participating departments during July. Entry to the B Psych programme is subject to an integrated assessment based on all the requirements being met. Applicants should have the following:

- B SocSci(Psychology) – first two years of study equal to  $\pm$  285 credits or
- Any B degree (National first degree) including at least 8 – 12 modules (minimum of four modules per year level) of Psychology, Educational Psychology, Sport Psychology and/or Industrial Psychology.

The number of students admitted to the B Psych programme will be limited and learners must meet with the selection criteria determined by the programme manager and heads of department.

BA Languages with specialization in Journalism

Students will only be admitted to this degree course after a selection process. Students will be evaluated for selection on the basis of academic achievement (particularly in languages) and any other considerations which may be deemed relevant.

1.6 National first degrees

See Par. 3(g) of this section, Regulations and Syllabi for Undergraduate Qualifications.

1.7 Postgraduate qualifications

Requirements for admission to postgraduate training programmes, closing dates for applications and selection criteria for such programmes are set out in the Humanities' booklet entitled Regulations and Syllabi for Postgraduate Qualifications.

1.8 Medium of instruction

The University presents its courses in two languages, namely Afrikaans and English (with the exception of specialist language courses). The medium of instruction for a module is determined by student demand and by the academic and economic justifiability of presenting the module in that language. All students remain responsible for finding out whether the modules in the package they would like to choose are offered at all levels in Afrikaans or English or both languages. For administrative and other services, students can choose whether they would like the University to communicate with them in Afrikaans or in English. See also the comments on the University's interim language policy. Generally, the symbol A&E indicates that separate classes will be available in each language while A/E indicates that lecturers will use both languages in one venue or either A or E depending on student demand.

1.9 Language skills

From 2000 onwards, the language skills of students who register at the University of Pretoria for the first time will be assessed at the start of their first year. Depending on the results of this assessment, every student in the Humanities:

- must obtain at least 12 credits in the language skills modules EOT 151,152, 153,154 which are presented by the Language Skills Unit;

or

- may obtain less than 12 credits in the language skills modules offered by the Language Skills Unit, but must make up the required number of credits, in consultation with the programme manager and package co-ordinator concerned, with modules offered by the School of Languages;

or

- must obtain 12 credits in modules offered by the School of Languages and/or other approved modules in consultation with the programme manager and package co-ordinator concerned.

For more information regarding course implications, refer to Module group 13 – Language Skills at first-year level on p 28 of this yearbook.

1.10 Computer skills

Unless other regulations apply to a package, the following modules in computer skills are compulsory for all new first-year students in the Faculty of Humanities: CIL171; 172; 174. Students who have passed the grade 12 examinations in Computer Studies on a higher or standard grade with at least a D symbol, need not register for CIL171. All students may apply to write tests for exemption from any of the modules in computer skills.

1.11 Academic and research skills

The EAG 151 module is compulsory for all students who register for undergraduate study at the University from 2000 onwards and can only be taken in the first quarter. The RES 151 module is a basic research module that is compulsory for most students who register for undergraduate study at the University for the first time and can only be taken in the third quarter.

1.12 Bursaries and loans

Details about bursaries and loans are available on request.

1.13 Residence accommodation

Applications to board in the University residences for a particular year may be submitted from 1 April of the preceding year. Applications will only be considered if there are vacancies in the residences, and prospective students are advised to apply as soon as possible.

Note: Admission to the University does not automatically mean that residence accommodation is available.

1.14 Changes to regulations and fees

The University reserves the right to amend regulations and syllabi where necessary and to change course fees without prior notice.

1.15 Cancellation of modules

Cancellation and/or changing of modules must be done within 10 days after commencement of modules. This date will be strictly enforced.

2. GENERAL REGULATIONS GOVERNING PROGRAMMES AND PACKAGES IN THE HUMANITIES

The rules for degrees, diplomas and certificates published here are subject to change and may be amended prior to the commencement of the academic year in 2002.

(These regulations apply only to degree programmes for which students have registered for the first time in or after the year 2000.)

2.1 Specific requirements

Prospective students must check which requirements apply to particular programmes, packages and modules offered in the Humanities and other faculties. The details of the particular requirements for packages are set out in the section on packages (Paragraphs A.1 to A.8). The details of the particular requirements for modules are set out in the LIST OF MODULES IN THE HUMANITIES on page 84.

Should a student wish to take a module offered by another faculty, he or she must determine the admission requirements for that module, as well as the subminima required for examination papers, supplementary examinations, etc. in the faculty concerned. Details concerning this appear in the LIST OF MODULES FROM OTHER FACULTIES AND DEPARTMENTS as well as in the Regulations and Syllabi for Undergraduate Qualifications of the faculties concerned.

2.2 Registration for a particular year

Students register at the start of each academic year for all the modules they wish to take in that year, in accordance with the rules governing the programme and package the students wish to register for. Students may change the modules they are registered for only in the first two weeks of the module cycle (quarter). Students who register late must check on the general regulations that govern late registration in the Faculty.

2.3 Course credits for unregistered students

There are students who attend lectures, write tests and examinations and in this manner earn “marks”, but have either not registered for courses or have not registered as students at all. These marks will not be communicated to any student before he/she has provided proof of enrolment. A student cannot obtain any credits in a specific academic year for a course “passed” in this manner during a previous academic year and for which he/she was not registered. This arrangement applies even where the student is prepared to pay the tuition fees.

2.4 Assessment

The regulations given below apply to the assessment of modules in the Faculty of Humanities, but departments may, in exceptional cases, make alternative arrangements in consultation with the Dean. At the beginning of a module, students must be informed in a study guide about arrangements regarding assessment in that particular module.

2.4.1 Examinations

- (i) No minimum progress mark is required for admission to an examination.
- (ii) In the calculation of the final mark for a module in which an examination is written, the progress mark will carry a weight of 60% and the examination mark a weight of 40%.
- (iii) In order to pass a module, a final mark of at least 50% and a minimum examination mark of 40% must be obtained, except when a module can be completed without a scheduled examination. A student will pass a module with distinction if a final mark of at least 75% is achieved.
- (iv) A module may be completed without a scheduled examination provided that:
  - (a) all the outcomes of the module have been evaluated by means of formative assessment;
  - (b) the final mark is based on the student's performance in at least three assessment opportunities;
  - (c) a final mark of at least 50% is obtained; and
  - (d) students are not provided with an additional opportunity for assessment, such as a retest or a supplementary examination.

NB. The Dean's permission must be obtained beforehand in such cases.

2.4.2 Supplementary examinations, extraordinary examinations (including aegrotats) and special examinations

- (i) Supplementary examinations, extraordinary examinations (including aegrotats) and special examinations will be written at the same time as supplementary examinations. These assessments must have the same format as the main exam for the module.
- (ii) Students who have been admitted to an extraordinary examination (including an aegrotat) or a special examination, will not be given the opportunity to write a supplementary examination in the module.
- (iii) A student may be admitted to a supplementary examination in cases where:
  - (a) a final mark of between 40% and 49% was obtained; or
  - (b) a final mark of 50% or more was obtained, but not the required examination subminimum of 40%.

- (iv) The Dean may, on the recommendation of the relevant head(s) of department, admit a student who requires a maximum of four modules to complete a degree, to a special examination in modules he or she has failed, so that he or she can fulfil the requirements for the degree. A student who has obtained a final mark of less than 40% in any such modules, or who has previously been admitted to such a special examination, will not qualify for a special examination.

2.4.3. Exemption from an examination (promotion)

All promotions in the Faculty of Humanities have been suspended.

2.4.4. Requirements to pass

According to General Regulation G.12.2 unless otherwise indicated.

2.4.5 Remarking of examination papers

Students who wish to have their papers remarked, must submit their request to the Dean of Humanities, who will inform the department concerned if the student's request for a remark is granted.

2.4.6 Progress and renewal of registration

In the case of full-time students, a three-year degree must be completed in a maximum of five years, and a four-year degree must be completed in a maximum of six years. In the case of part-time students, telematic-tuition students and students who follow an approved extended study programme, a three-year degree must be completed in a maximum of six years and a four-year degree must be completed in a maximum of seven years.

Provided that the Faculty Board has not approved different regulations for a package,

- (a) full-time students who are registered for a three-year degree, must obtain at least 60 credits during their first year of registration and at least 80 credits during each subsequent year;
- (b) full-time students who are registered for a four-year degree, must obtain at least 80 credits during their first year of registration and at least 85 credits during each subsequent year;
- (c) in the case of a three-year degree, part-time students and telematic-tuition students must obtain at least 60 credits during their first year of registration and at least 65 credits during each subsequent year;
- (d) in the case of a four-year degree, part-time students, telematic-tuition students and students who follow an approved extended study programme, must obtain at least 65 credits during their first year of registration and at least 70 credits during each subsequent year;
- (e) in the case of a three-year degree, students who follow an approved extended study programme must obtain at least 57 credits during their first year of registration and at least 76 credits during each subsequent year.

2.4.7 General Regulations

General Regulations G.1 to G.15 apply to the Bachelor's degree qualifications.

3. QUALIFICATIONS IN THE FACULTY OF HUMANITIES

The structure and details of the programmes and packages culminating in each of the qualifications listed below are set out comprehensively in the CURRICULA FOR DEGREE AND DIPLOMA PROGRAMMES. (A.1 to A.11)

- (a) National first degrees:
- (i) Baccalaureus Artium in Linguages – BA Languages
    - (aa) specializing in Languages
    - (bb) specializing in English Studies
    - (cc) specializing in Journalism
  - (ii) Baccalaureus Politicæ Scientiæ – B PolSci
    - (aa) specializing in International Studies
    - (bb) specializing in Political Studies
  - (iii) Baccalaureus Societatis Scientiæ – B SocSci
    - (aa) specializing in Labour Studies
    - (bb) specializing in Community Development
    - (cc) specializing in Gender Studies
    - (dd) specializing in Social Work
    - (ee) specializing in Psychology
    - (ff) specializing in Sport Psychology

    - (aa) specializing in Audiology
    - (bb) specializing in Speech-Language Pathology
    - (cc) specializing in Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology
  - (vi) Baccalaureus Informationis Scientiæ – B IS
    - (aa) specializing in Library Science
    - (bb) specializing in Information Science
    - (cc) specializing in Multimedia
    - (dd) specializing in Publishing
    - (ee) specializing in Information and Knowledge Management
  - (vii) Baccalaureus and Baccalaureus Artium in the Arts
    - (aa) BA (Fine Arts)
    - (bb) BA (Information Design)
    - (cc) BA (Visual Studies)
    - (dd) BA (Arts Education)
    - (ee) BMus
    - (ff) BA (Music)
    - (gg) BA (Drama)

(viii) Baccalaureus Artium – BA

- (aa) BA (Own Choice) Students who want to take a general BA (without specialization), must consult the BA programme manager and/or student guidance counsellors when they put together their programme.
- (bb) BA Human Movement Science
- (cc) BA Law
- (dd) BA(Education) (Not for new first-year students)

(ix) Other degrees

- (aa) Baccalaureus Psychologiae: B Psych
- (bb) Baccalaureus in Sport Science: B SportSci

(b) Diplomas

- (i) Further Diploma in Education (Group Music)
- (ii) University Diploma in Church Music
- (iii) Diploma in Sport Science

(c) Certificate

- (i) Certificate in Sport Science

(d) Honours degrees

Fields of study: See Regulations and Syllabi for Postgraduate Qualifications

(e) Master's degrees

Fields of study: See Regulations and Syllabi for Postgraduate Qualifications

(f) Doctorates

Fields of study: See Regulations and Syllabi for Postgraduate Qualifications

(g) Duration

The minimum duration of study is three years.

(h) Composition of programmes

- (i) Programmes are structured teaching and learning units compiled by programme managers to achieve specified market-oriented outcomes.
- (ii) A programme can culminate in more than one degree or diploma qualification, depending on its particular focus and the combination of its various components.
- (iii) In accordance with particular focal areas within programmes, specialization packages have been designed. Packages are coherent units consisting of available and appropriate modules offered in the Faculty of Humanities and other faculties and departments.
- (iv) The modules which constitute programmes and packages can be grouped into three categories, namely fundamental, core and elective modules (see the glossary of terms on p 18).
- (v) Students themselves put together a package in consultation with one of the programme managers and/or package co-ordinators, taking into account the rules for the composition of a programme and applicable requirements for taking certain modules.

- (vi) A BA without specialization can be put together in consultation with student counsellors. This programme can be put together in such a way that it meets the student's particular individual career needs.
  - (vii) Students must achieve a total of at least 360 credits to be awarded a degree qualification.
  - (viii) The following quantitative and qualitative distribution of modules is recommended for three-year degree programmes:

(aa)	First year of study:	20 modules worth 6 credits each
(bb)	Second year of study:	12 modules worth 10 credits each
(cc)	Third year of study:	8 modules worth 15 credits each

Note that this is the minimum number of modules which may be included in a programme. Also note that the credit values of modules from other faculties and departments may differ, but that the total number of credits for the package must still be obtained as a minimum before the degree can be awarded.
  - (ix) All the modules in a specific package which are either compulsory or elective, are listed in the CURRICULA FOR DEGREE AND DIPLOMA PROGRAMMES in A.1 to A.8. The modules in packages have been arranged according to the categories of fundamental, core and elective modules. The alphacode indicates the discipline to which the module belongs, e.g. APL (Anthropology), GES (History), SLK (Psychology), etc. The first digit of the module code indicates the year or level of study: e.g. 151 shows that the module is a year-level 1-module; 255 that the module is taken at year-level 2; and 352 that the module is taken at the third year-level.
- (i) Deviations from the prescribed programme combination
Any deviation from a prescribed programme or package combination (e.g. recognition of credits already obtained, admission to further modules, deviations from the prescribed module structure, etc.) may only be made subject to the approval of the Dean, after consultation with the programme manager and package coordinator concerned.
  - (j) Degree with distinction
To be awarded a degree with distinction, a student must obtain an average of at least 75% in the required number of modules on the highest year-level of the package/programme, including core and fundamental modules.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

academic year: This is the time unit, as determined by the University Council, during which a student can complete his/her studies at a particular year level.

after-hours studies: This refers to studies undertaken by registering for the University's after-hours study programme, and attending lectures in courses/programmes that are offered after the end of the day's intramural lectures. After-hours studies may also refer to studies which are offered, in accordance with the regulations, over a longer period than the normal minimum duration for the degree or diploma.

core module: This is a module which is essential or central to achieving the outcomes for a particular programme or package.

credit (or credit value): This refers to a value unit linked to particular learning activities. In the case of modules, the value is related to the complexity (including the year-level at which the course is taken: 1, 2 or 3) and the total number of learning hours needed to complete the module successfully. Credit values are also attached to the completion of qualifications: to complete a three-year Bachelor's degree, students must normally be awarded a minimum of 360 credits (on average, 120 credits at each of the three year-levels, with a minimum of 72 credits at the third year-level).

elective module: This is a module from a group of modules from which students can choose to contextualise the central learning activities of a programme or package and to broaden their insight into their chosen area of specialization.

examination mark: This is the mark awarded to a student in a subject course on the basis of an examination in a paper/papers, including practical and clinical examinations, where applicable.

extended programme: This is a training programme for a degree or diploma qualification which is taken over a period which, according to the regulations, is longer than the normal minimum duration for the course or programme.

final mark: This is a mark calculated on the basis of the semester mark/year mark and the examination mark awarded to a student in a subject course, using a formula which is determined from time to time by means of regulations for every subject course.

fundamental module: This is a module which serves as the academic basis or foundation of the core learning activities for a particular programme or package.

learning hours: This refers to the notional number of hours students should spend to master the learning content of a particular module or programme. The total number of learning hours for a module consists of the time needed for lectures, practicals, self-study and any other activity required by the training programme. Learning hours for modules are calculated on the basis of 40 working hours per week x 28 weeks = 1120 + 80 additional hours for evaluation = 1200. For undergraduate modules, the total number of learning hours per module are calculated using the formula number of credits (per module) x 10.

level (or year-level): This is an indication of the complexity of a module (e.g. first, second or further level), and also implies a particular credit value. The (year) level is indicated by the first digit of the module code (thus, AFR 352 is a module in the discipline of Afrikaans at Level 3). A programme which culminates in a National first degree qualification normally consists of first, second and third level modules.

module: This is an independent, defined learning unit (normally presented over seven weeks) which is a component of a package or programme.

module code: This is a unique alphanumeric code for a module. It consists of a fixed number of capitals (the alphacode) which indicate the name of the discipline (e.g. APL for Anthropology), and numeric combinations which identify the year-level and the order in a series of modules (e.g. 152, where the 1 shows that the module is presented at the first year-level, the 5 shows that it is a module, and the 2 shows that it is the second module in the series of Anthropology modules at that level).

module mark: This is the mark awarded to a student on the basis of tests, class work, practical work or any other work completed during the period of presentation.

package: This is a group of modules which are connected and share a particular focus and are taken by students as an area of specialization within a programme. The name of the package indicates the area of specialization, and is part of the name of the degree or diploma qualification, e.g. B PolSci (Political studies) where Political studies refers to the name of the specialization package.

package co-ordinator: This is the individual responsible for organising, compiling and arranging the teaching of a particular package. This individual can also guide students in their combinations towards a package so that they meet the programme requirements, taking into account a student's personal interests and preferences.

programme: This is a comprehensively planned, structured and coherent set of teaching and learning units (modules) which culminate in a student being awarded a particular qualification (certificate, diploma or degree), e.g. a Programme in Political Science. Programmes can be subdivided into further areas of specialization, namely packages.

programme manager: This is the individual responsible for the overhead management, organization and composition of a particular programme, and the packages which make up the programme.

qualification: This is the particular (career-oriented) outcome of a programme for which a diploma or degree is awarded in the Humanities.

registration: This is the process candidates need to follow to become registered students in accordance with the general requirements and regulations of the University and for the course/programme for which they want to register.

semester mark/year mark: This is a mark awarded to a student on the basis of tests, class work, practical work or any other work which was done in a subject course during the semester or year.

subject: This refers to a defined field of study from which one or more (subject) course(s) can be selected.

(subject) course: This is a defined aspect of a subject to which a (subject) course code has been allocated (from the year 2000 onwards, the equivalent term will be the module).

(subject) course code: This is an alphanumeric code consisting of a fixed number of capitals (the alphacode) and numeric combinations which identify the year of study and semester (if it refers to a semester course), e.g. AFR 220 (from 2000 onwards, the equivalent is called a module code).

year(s) of study: These are the first, second, third and further years of study for which a student can register in order to achieve a particular degree qualification.

DEGREES, DIPLOMAS AND CERTIFICATES

A.1 PROGRAMME: BACCALAUREUS ARTIUM IN LANGUAGES
Official designation: BA Languages
Programme manager:

A.1.1 BA LANGUAGES (Kode 01130013)

This package is aimed at equipping the learner with communication skills as well as in-depth knowledge of the language, literature and culture of at least one language. Through the study of language, students are guided towards critical reflection on and justified participation in (cultural) discourses, and they acquire perspectives on different aspects of man and his interaction with the world. They are also equipped to become researchers or practitioners (full-time or freelance) in any of the following professional domains: translation, editing, lexicography, language planning and language development, teaching, corporate communication, document design, advertising, creative writing, media work, community development, tourism and the diplomatic service.

Please note:

Students who wish to specialize in English Studies or Journalism may register for the packages with those endorsements. See A.1.2. and A.1.3 below.

A.1.2 BA Languages specializing in ENGLISH STUDIES (Code 01130009)

The increasing prominence of English as a preferred medium of communication both in South Africa and abroad means that there is a steady demand for language practitioners who are fluent in English. Specialisation in English Studies has been designed to meet this need by equipping students not only with traditional literary skills, but with the applied linguistic skills which the market requires.

Notes

- * For language practitioners.
- ** Students should select a language that they are not acquainted with, for example, a language they did not do at school level. For some of these languages four consecutive modules are compulsory (All four have to be taken – see list of modules).
- ∇ Language groups for each individual year of study appear on page 26.
Students who pass the language skills test must select two modules from any language group and/or Drama and Film Studies (DFK) to the value of at least 12 credits in place of EOT 151-154.

A.1.3 BA Languages specializing in JOURNALISM (Code 01130004)

This package is aimed at training students who are interested in a career in journalism or the media. It provides a broad intellectual, cultural, linguistic and literary context for this career field, as well as applied technical and skills training.

Selection:

Students will only be admitted after a selection process. Students will have to comply with a prescribed period of practical work in a media environment before graduating.

Official designation: B PoSci

Programme manager:

Prof A du Plessis, HSB 21-16, Telno: (012) 420 2424, e-mail: adupples@postino.up.ac.za

A.2.1 B PoSci specializing in INTERNATIONAL STUDIES
(Code 01130033)

The purpose of this package is to provide qualifiers with an in-depth knowledge and understanding of contemporary world politics and related changes in the international system. This will enable learners, once they are employed in the public or private sector, to respond in an innovative and pro-active manner to the problems and challenges of globalisation.

Compulsory

Departmental selection is a prerequisite for this package.

- Candidates must sign a declaration of secrecy regarding information obtained from personal files.
- Each student in Communication Pathology must apply to the Registrar of the Health Professions Council of South Africa to register as a student in Communication Pathology immediately after admission to the first year of study.
- In order to be admitted to a subsequent year of study, a student may not repeat more than one module from a specific subject of the previous year of study. The student may advance to a subsequent year of study while repeating this module, timetables permitting. However, some modules are interdependent and can only be followed after particular preparatory modules have been successfully completed. Consultation with the head of the department is essential prior to registration for subjects in which a module was failed.
- Students who pass the language skills test, may replace the modules EOT 151-154 with two modules from language groups 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 or 17 (African languages) or two modules Linguistics on level 1 (see language groups on p.26 or the list of modules on p 84).

Degree with distinction

To be awarded a degree with distinction, a student must achieve an average of at least 75% or more in eight of the modules offered in the fourth year of study as well as an average of at least 70% or more in the other modules.

A.5.2 B Communication Pathology specializing in SPEECH-LANGUAGE PATHOLOGY (Code 01135021)

A.6.2 B IS specializing in INFORMATION SCIENCE
(Code 01131004)

Information is required by most people in order to complete their daily tasks. This package is designed to train students in the management, retrieval and organization of information, as well as adding value to and packaging and distribution of information, with a further focus in the use of information technology and the processing of information products.

Admission requirements

A grade 12-certificate with university exemption, and:

- at least 50% in Afrikaans or English at higher grade
and
- M-score of 11
and
- at least 50% in Mathematics at higher grade; or 60% in Mathematics at standard grade; or an average of 60% in Statistics 110 and 120 (two first-year courses).

A.6.3 B IS specializing in MULTIMEDIA (Code 01131005)

Modern technology makes possible the design and creation of information products consisting of various types of media over and above the traditional text medium. Information technology is thus converging various previously separate traditional media. There is not a single discipline that handles the combination of information products. The Multimedia qualification in the Department of Information Science addresses this shortcoming. Any type of institution in all economic spheres, including government, may profit from a multimedia approach to information design, organization and retrieval. Multimedia documents include text, graphics, sound, video and animation. The purpose of this qualification is to enable learners to understand the necessary concepts to build multimedia products and maintain the products. This programme thus is a combination of theory and practice.

The explosion of the Web, as well as the exponential growth and power of information technology requires the introduction of this degree following international trends. The qualification is thus a new field of study not presented at other local universities.

Admission requirements

A.7.5 B in MUSIC [BMus]
(Code 01132001)

This package is aimed at the acquisition of specialist music skills and knowledge. The package can be compiled in such a way that, on its completion, students are qualified for a wide variety of music-related occupations, including the following: solo performer, orchestral or chamber musician, music teacher at all levels (for individual and group tuition), musicologist, music technologist, entrepreneur, and impresario.

Closing date for applications:

30 September

* MME 400 can only be taken if the first instrument is piano, organ or singing.

** MEI 403 is a concert of 1 hour.

*** Students who pass the language skills test are exempted from EOT 151-154.

All students write a short dissertation in the fourth year, except those who take MEI 403. The dissertation forms part of one of the fourth-year subjects.

Departmental selection is a prerequisite for admission to this package.*(a) Additional admission requirements:

- (i) Admission is subject to tests in the first instrument, music theory, harmony, aural tests, and writing skills. A minimum of 50% in Music as a grade 12-subject (HG) or 60% (SG) or Grade VII practical and Grade V theory (Unisa) serves as a guideline of the expected standard. A student is admitted to Music Theory 100 or 102 on basis of selection.
- (ii) A student who is not admitted to Music Theory 100, but who obtains at least 75% in Music Theory 102 at the end of the first year of study, may with the approval of the head of the department, be admitted to Music Theory 200.
- (iii) A student who obtains less than 75% for Music Theory 102, must register for Music Theory 100 and pass it, before he/she will be admitted to Music Theory 200.

(b) Practical Music

Students choose a first and a second instrument from the following: Voice, piano, organ, harpsichord, violin, viola, cello, double bass, flute, oboe, clarinet, bassoon, French horn, trumpet, trombone, tuba, percussion, harp, guitar, recorder, African drums.

Note:

- The choice of a rare practical subject is based on the assumption that a suitable lecturer is available for that particular subject. The University does not accept responsibility for providing a lecturer of these instruments at costs exceeding the normal.

- In order to be admitted to MTI 100 (Second instrument) in any instrument other than organ, harpsichord or singing, a student should have reached approximately Unisa Grade VI or a comparable standard on that instrument; in the case of organ, harpsichord, and singing, admission is at the discretion of the head of the department.

(c) Attendance courses

- In addition to the courses mentioned in the learning programme, students are obliged to attend the weekly recital classes.
- The conductor of the University orchestra can instruct students, who play orchestral instruments, to play in the orchestra.
- Unsatisfactory attendance of the recital classes and orchestral rehearsals may, at the discretion of the head of the department, lead to refusal of admission to the examination in the first instrument.

(d) Admission to a subsequent year of study

- Second year of study: must acquire at least 108 credits for music modules on year-level one
- Third year of study: must acquire all credits on level 1 (168 credits), as well as at least 155 credits for music modules on year-level 2
- Fourth year of study: must acquire all credits on level 2 (175 credits) , as well as at least 105 credits for music modules on year-level 3
- With regard to all modules, a student may only be admitted to an advanced level of a subject if he or she has acquired all credits for modules on the previous level of such a subject (e.g.12 credits for MME 100 should be acquired before registering for MME 200), unless the head of the department grants permission to the contrary. An exception is MCS 401 and 402, which can be taken without the credits for MCS 300 having been acquired, on condition that the content of MCS 401 and 402 has not already been offered on third year-level by the department.

A.7.6 BA specializing in MUSIC [BA(Music)]
(Code 01130072)

The aim of the package is to make students musically literate and to develop their practical music-making skills. They also learn to understand and appreciate many facets of the theory and history of music and are trained as capable classroom teachers. Apart from the music aspects of this package, students register for other BA subjects in which they acquire the requisite knowledge, skills and attitudes of those disciplines.

A.8.1 Baccalaureus Artium (Own choice) [BA OWN CHOICE]
(Code 01130001)

This qualification is directed at a general education in the Humanities. It does not lead to any specific career outcomes. The student has, however, the opportunity to compose his/her package in order to effect an outcome. An academic career with a special focus on a particular discipline is possible. It provides the student with a broad academic basis in order to make an informed decision with regard to postgraduate training.

Students who want to follow this programme, must consult the BA programme manager and/or student guidance counsellors when they compile their programmes.

A.9 OTHER DEGREES

A.9.1 BACCALAUREUS PSYCHOLOGIAE [B Psych] (Code: 01135050)

Programme manager:

Dr GJ van Schalkwyk, HSB 12-9, Tel nr: (012) 420 2921,
e-mail: gvschalk@postino.up.ac.za

Departments involved:

- Psychology
- Orthopedagogics
- Educational Guidance and Counselling
- Biokinetics, Sport and Leisure Sciences

Purpose of qualification:

- This qualification enables learners to obtain in-depth knowledge of the major principles, theories, paradigms and methods in Psychology and its applied fields within various occupational contexts, thus forming a basis for advanced knowledge and understanding of human behaviour.
- Qualifying learners who comply with the requirements set by the Professional Board for Psychology will be able to register with the Health Professions Council of South Africa as Registered Counsellors. They will have attained the necessary knowledge and skills to practice either being self employed, or employed by institutions. Depending on the particular combination of modules taken, qualifying learners will be able to practice in the fields of mental health, educational psychology or sport psychology.
- Qualifying learners will understand and be able to apply the principles on which decisions are made for the performance of formalised, structured and short-term interventions at the primary curative/preventative level, and to design and manage sub-elements of intervention programmes and processes. This will ensure a steady supply of qualified practitioners capable of delivering psychological services to the broad and diverse range of contexts within South Africa.
- This qualification contains the necessary elements which promote lifelong learning and personal development.

Requirements for entrance to B Psych:

- B SocSci (Psychology) – first two years of study with 252 credits or
- Any B-degree (BA, B Ed, B Com or equivalent National 1st degree) including at least 8–12 modules (four modules per year-level) of Psychology, Educational Psychology and/or Industrial Psychology.
- Note: Entry to the B Psych programme is subject to an integrated assessment based on all the requirements being met. Entrants from the latter category may be required to do additional modules as prescribed by the Departments involved at UP simultaneously with the modules for B Psych.
- The number of students admitted to the programme will be limited and learners must meet the selection criteria determined by the programme manager(s) and/or the relevant heads of departments.

- Year one and two of the B Psych programme coincide with the B SocSci programme. Students therefore start out in the B SocSci programme and finish in the B Psych programme after successful selection. This is due to the necessity for selection at the end of the second year of study.
- Year 3 and 4 involve extended academic years of 40 weeks and 50 hours per week.
- According to market needs, contexts for application of competencies could be changed in the elective component of the B Psych programme. However, the fundamental and core learning components are fixed to comply with the competency training required for professional practice.
- Modules other than those above may be selected in consultation with the programme manager and/or the head of the department of the relevant context of application.
