

Dr Hanneke du Preez

BA (General), HED, BCompt (Hons), Postgraduate Certificate in Advanced Taxation, MCom(Taxation) (cum laude), PhD in Taxation

Hanneke is a senior lecturer in Taxation at the University of Pretoria. She completed her PhD (Taxation) in 2016. She has experience as the teaching and learning departmental coordinator, research coordinator for a MCom (Taxation) programme, subject head of various undergraduate Taxation subjects, as well as supervisor for numerous students busy with their mini-dissertations. Hanneke also has extensive experience as lecturer in Taxation on pre- and postgraduate levels and as presenter of various certificate courses. Her career started as secondary school teacher and developed into a senior lecturer at tertiary institutions for the past 16 years.

Hanneke is a qualified chartered accountant, a registered member of the SAICA and a registered master tax practitioner at SAIT. She received the award for best master's dissertation in 2010, presented papers on national and international conferences, published research articles in accredited journals, received two grants for her PhD research, and is currently a consulting reviewer for the Journal of Economic and Financial Sciences. She is also an external examiner for Master's degree dissertations at various universities.

Her international academic contacts span over several continents and many countries where she receive support for her research. She has a keen interest in taxation integrated with philosophy, history (focused on Africa) and fundamental principles of Taxation (tax policy).