

David Kabwa - SRC President

Hi, my name is David Kabwa.

I am an International Relations Honours student, at the University of Pretoria and president of the SRC. It's very difficult time for all of us as students. There are many question that are up in the air; what will happen after the lockdown, will the lockdown be extended and, if so, does it even make sense for me to be working as hard as I am? I would like to encourage you right now from one student to the next and remind you that life is a matter of decision.

Remember this: You can, you will and that's the end of the story.

You can make a valid contribution towards your academics because your academics matter. You will overcome and you will make it towards making your degree and that is the end of story because you are the person who holds that pen in your hand and who is able ready and willing to make that contribution.

You can. You will. End of story.
