1. Purpose of Document

1.1. Background to the Report

This report focuses on the completed activities by the African Centre of Excellence for Information Ethics (ACEIE) from 1 January to 31 December 2015. These activities relate to the participating entities that include the Africa Network for Information Ethics (ANIE), United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO), the Department of Telecommunications and Postal Services (DTPS), formerly known as the Department of Communications (DoC), and the University of Pretoria (UP).

2. Background on the establishment of the ACEIE

The ACEIE was established according to a UP Senate decision on 17 May 2012 following the signing of a formal Memorandum of Agreement (MoA) between the South African Department of Telecommunications and Postal Services and the University of Pretoria. The ACEIE is based at the Department of Information Science within the Faculty of Engineering, Built Environment and Information Technology at the University of Pretoria and is managed according to the policies and procedures of the University of Pretoria. The renewed Memorandum of Agreement (MoA) between the South African Department of Telecommunications and Postal Services and the University of Pretoria was signed on 21 January 2016. The first year of this MoA is in effect from 1 April 2015 to 31 March 2016.

2.1. Information Ethics (IE) Purpose Statement

As a descriptive theory IE explores the power structures influencing informational and communicational attitudes and traditions in different cultures and epochs. As an emancipatory theory IE develops criticisms of moral, i.e., life-world attitudes and traditions in the information and communication field at an individual and collective level. It includes normative aspects.

IE explores and evaluates:

- the development of moral, i.e., life-world values in the information and communication field,
- the creation of new power structures in the information and communication field,

- information and communication myths,
- hidden contradictions and intentionalities in information and communication theories and practices,
- the development of ethical conflicts in the information and communication field.

The following definition of Information Ethics appears in the Concepts in Information Ethics, An introductory workbook edited and developed by le Sueur, C., Hommes, E. & Bester, B.C. (2013).

[Information Ethics is a] branch of applied ethics that studies what is morally good or bad, specifically in the context of the handling of Information, and the Information Age.

Information Ethics is a branch of applied ethics. IE deals with issues like justice, fairness, freedom and human dignity and what is morally right or wrong on three levels:

- (1) Macro level: The broad social and environmental issues attributed to the features of the Information Age (like the Digital Divide and e-Waste),
- (2) Meso level: Questions arising in the sphere of public policy, discourse and regulation of information (like Censorship), and
- (3) Micro level: The day-to-day handling of information throughout the Information life-cycle (like Plagiarism).

IE topics include Information and ICT based:

- conditions

(information- poverty, literacy, access)

- crimes

(cracking, identity theft/fraud)

- experiences

(information- overload and anxiety, cyberbullying)

- rights and responsibilities

(Information privacy, cyber-citizenship, social responsibility, accountability etc.)

According to the African Network for Information Ethics, “Information Ethics is a relatively new concept that developed as part of the growing availability and use of ICTs [and studies] the changes in the relationship between people and the world due to information and communication technologies”. Essentially, ancient, modern and contemporary approaches to ethics are employed to address current, developing and foreseeable ethical issues that arise with the increasing prominence of the role of information and ICTs.<sup>1</sup>

9. Way Forward

During the past four years the ACEIE established a structure to represent South Africa and the African continent within the new science of Information Ethics, the UNESCO WSIS objectives and more specifically, with the WSIS Action Line C 10. These results created an opportunity to support the Department of Telecommunications and Postal Services in its research and development objectives in serving the South African Information and Knowledge Society as well as the Communications and Information community in Africa.

According to UNESCO WSIS Action line C10 the Information Society should be subject to universally held values and promote the common good and to prevent abusive uses of ICTs. In order to achieve this the ACEIE continued during 2015 with its objectives to create awareness on Information Ethics. These programmes included workshops, research and publications on the Digital Wellness programme.

The ACEIE also continued to strengthen its relationship with the South African National Commission for UNESCO, the SA NatCom. This manifested in meetings where the ACEIE's representatives formed part of the committees on the Communication and Information Sector (CI) and subsequently the Information For All Programme (IFAP). The director of the ACEIE, Mr Coetzee Bester continued as the South African Chair of IFAP South Africa. The UNESCO National Commission of UNESCO funded the ACEIE to conduct 5 projects on Digital Wellness. The projects not only had activities as its product, but also produced 9 booklets for community training and basic education. These collaborations with the DTPS and SA NatCom further supported the ACEIEs vision to apply for the UNESCO Category 2 Centre or Institution status. This further resulted in additional meetings with the Department of International Relations and Cooperative Affairs (DIRCO) and meetings at the UNESCO Headquarters in Paris. The ACEIE looks forward to include government, the DTPS, UNESCO, academic institutions and the private sector in a formidable team with knowledge and resources to further build on ethical behaviour in the knowledge and information society in Africa.

10. Vote of Thanks

ACEIE would like to express their gratitude towards the Department of Telecommunications (DTPS), South Africa and SA NatCom, as well as the following parties for their continuous support:

Present: Marthinus van Schalkwyk (MvS); Rina-Louise Pretorius (RLP), Andile Mgweba (AM); Rachel Fischer (RF); George Molepo (GM); Coetzee Bester (CB)

Nature of meeting was a general discussion and did not follow a set agenda. Notes are more illustrative of the discussion that took place.

Coetzee Bester opens the meeting and indicates that the ACEIE will send the reports and other documentation of the UNESCO visit in December if requested. Background to the contract and relationship between the ACEIE and DTPS is provided. Funding term was from 1 January 2012 to 31 December 2014. Final activities and reports to be submitted by end of March 2015. The agreement between ACEIE and DTPS must continue/renewed, and then scope will be for 5 years. The ACEIE is in the process of finalising documents. Parent organisations of the ACEIE will remain the DTPS and UP.

UNESCO HQ visit in December 2014 and Background to the ACEIE:

- Carlton attended the visit and presentations, meetings, also with Category 2 Centre office (Dulat Kasymiov) and met with the foreign department due to the support of Mr Thivhilaeli Makatu.
- Reference is made to the 8 NHI sites and the 7 pillars of Digital Opportunities.
- Focus of the ACEIE.

Three focal points of previous ACEIE MoA:

1. Research
2. Workshops
3. Curriculum

The ACEIE is interested to learn what the opportunities will be of the Category 2 Centre platform.

Marthinus van Schalkwyk asks about the aims and funding of the ACEIE. It is also mentioned that one must understand that UNESCO does not necessarily fund Category 2 Centre, but this allows for opportunities to secure funding from external bodies and/or other funders. UNESCO does not have a difficulty in supporting the institution/centre (ACEIE), for much of the work takes place at "hosting institution" (UP). For example C2C in Water at UKZN

- South Africa is in the process of lobbying to become part of the Board at UNESCO.
- One must prevent obstacles and misunderstandings such as personnel issues.
- It is positive to have discussion with DTPS, because the interaction and negotiations will be between NatCom and DTPS with support from DIRCO.
- Do not rush agreement issue. Advise ministers properly and do agreement properly. DTPS must run it through their legal section > Department of Justice then > Foreign Affairs/ International Affairs. The biggest issue might be DTPS who must be quick in compiling and confirming the agreement.
- The next conference is in November 2015 so this must be run by the processes of NatCom. And the timelines should be adhered to.
- Substance - not much input from DIRCO is required but they do play a facilitation role. DTPS has to ensure that it complies with governmental/political guidelines requirements

If this C2C centre is established, how will it be utilised in the South African programme. Will it also be linked with UNESCO programmes and provide support with regards to acquiring additional funding? In order for this process to work well the following must take place:

- Identify draft for C2C.

Source drafts from NatCom (or UNESCO, but a local and not too generic draft is preferred).

- A consultative meeting with C2C in UKZN must be held between the ACEIE and this Water Centre.
- After Paris meeting:
  - Support of African meeting
  - Harare office Southern African region
  - Lobby work have taken place without it being part of the actual project
  - Focus: 5 years (DTPS) but 6 years for C2C.

- Steps and processes for the next meeting:

1) DIRCO to consult with colleagues in Paris.

2) DTPS will consult with their contacts at Water Affairs and the centre

3) ACEIE to set up meeting between Water Centre at UKZN and the ACEIE.

4) SA NatCom to provide the forms and guidelines for Category 2 Institution and Centre (C2C) applications processes.

5) In the first week in February, during the next meeting, the following will be discussed: forms, processes, best practices, and the allocation of responsibilities.

- Date and time of next meeting: 16 February 2015, 10:00

- Last remarks:

Andile: DTPS to confirm who will accompany the ACEIE to UNESCO HQ, in Paris, in March 2015.

Meeting Concluded: 11h14

Rachel Fischer, Research Assistant: University of Pretoria;

Coetzee Bester, Director: ACEIE, University of Pretoria

Nature of meeting was a general discussion and did not follow a set agenda. Notes are more illustrative of the discussion that took place.

Main points for follow-up after previous meeting were:

- 1) DIRCO to consult with colleagues in Paris to obtain the latest procedures for establishing a Category 2 Institution / Centre (C2C). Note: The information was shared before the meeting of 16 February.
- 2) DTSPS to consult the Department of Water Affairs and Sanitation on the establishment of the C2C at the University of KwaZulu-Natal (UKZN) as well as the lessons learned from this process. Note: The Department of Water Affairs and Sanitation was not represented at the meeting of 16 February.
- 3) ACEIE to consult the UKZN on the establishment of the C2C at the University and the lessons learnt from this process. Note: This was done.
- 4) SA NatCom to provide the forms and guidelines for Category 2 Institution and Centre (C2C) applications processes. Note: See 1 above.
- 5) In the first week in February, during the next meeting, the following will be discussed: forms, processes, best practices, and the allocation of responsibilities.

Decisions and discussions made during the meeting:

- The draft agreement and draft proposal will be ready by end of February for consultation with national stakeholder (DTPS) as well as to seek guidance from UNESCO during the visit by the ACEIE to Paris from 1 to 6 March 2015.
- Together with this the minutes of the two meetings that took place will be shared.
Note: These minutes should be considered as in-house documents and should therefore not be shared with UNESCO.

The representative from NATCOM presented a compilation of documents to the meeting which included the following:

- The model agreement that needs to be signed between a Member State and UNESCO in order to establish a C2C. It should be noted that not all of the aspects of this agreement will be applicable. It is, however, recommended that the draft to be compiled between the ACEIE, DTPS and UNESCO follow this format.
- After this draft agreement has been compiled by the legal section of Department of the Department of Telecommunications and Postal Services (DTPS) and consulted between DTPS and UNESCO, it must be presented for certification to the Department of Justice (DoJ) as well as the Chief State Law Adviser: International Law in DIRCO. Once the agreement has been certified by both entities the legal section in the DTPS will seek a Presidential Minute to authorise the Minister of Telecommunication and Postal Services to sign the agreement with UNESCO on behalf of South Africa.
- A request to NATCOM was made to provide a version of the C2C template in Word.

The representative from DIRCO alerted the meeting that there could be a difference between the “Feasibility Study” (prior) and “Review Process” (during). She noted that the establishment of the Centre could be expedited if the need for a feasibility study could be avoided. This could be achieved if the C2C Proposal was as complete as possible and provided enough information that would satisfy the Director-General of UNESCO of the relevance and need for establishing a C2C on Information Ethics.

The Chairperson advised that no formal letters with regard to the establishment of the proposed C2C be forwarded to UNESCO until the required Proposal on the establishment of this Centre has been finalised and agreed to by the respective South African stakeholders namely: DTPS, DIRCO and the NATCOM. He further noted that letters of intent should be avoided as these create expectations and do not ensure that the proposals conveyed in such letters are realised.

The Director of ACEIE emphasised that a Memorandum of Agreement (MoA) must first be signed by the DTPS and UP before the C2C application becomes formalised. This means that the legwork and preparation must be done by the DTPS and the ACEIE such that the conditions for C2C status are met.

The Chairperson recommended that the University of Pretoria / ACEIE approach the UKZN Water Centre on the processes which the latter followed to establish the Centre as well as the nature and status of the agreement where-by the Centre was established. He noted further that it might be useful to obtain lessons learnt from the UKZN in terms of the C2C which it established.

He also indicated that valuable experience and information (including pit-falls to avoid) can also be obtained from other similar C2C processes followed in South Africa, such as the establishment of the African World Heritage Fund (AWHF).

The importance was highlighted of following the guidelines and provisions in the Integrated Comprehensive Strategy for Category 2 Institutes and Centres under the auspices of UNESCO, as adopted by the UNESOC General Conference in 2013. This would help to expedite the establishment of the C2C on Information Ethics and that it is done in a manner that would not result in any embarrassments for the Country.

The absence of the DTPS was noted and DIRCO reiterated that the participation of the DTPS in this process was essential, along with the close cooperation between the DTPS and the ACEIE, if the C2C on Information Ethics was to be established.

Agenda for Paris meeting, 1 to 6 March 2015:

- a. ACEIE presentation to “Connecting the dots”
- b. Presentation to the Africa Group – Mr Thivhilaeli Makatu
- c. Category 2 application meeting with the Category 2 Office – report on activities

- d. Category 2 meeting with the SA Embassy to France – presentation to the office of the new Ambassador
- e. Meeting with Africa Group – Mr Paul Hector
- f. CI/IFAP event, Eastern Cape, 26 March 2015 – Ms Chafica Haddad
  - i. ACEIE Conference Eastern Cape – meetings with IFAP and Africa Region
  - ii. IFAP Workshop in Eastern Cape – detail planning with UNESCO Chair
- Next Activities:
  - ACEIE telephonic discussion with UKZN Water Centre on Wednesday, 18 February 2015, at 14h30.
  - ACEIE visit to Paris, 1 - 6 March 2015
  - Next meeting: 12 March 2015 at 10h00.

Meeting Concluded: 11h00

Points to be noted after telephonic discussion with Prof GPW Jewitt, the Director of the Centre for Water Resources Research, at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, Pietermaritzburg campus.

- This centre is involved in UNESCO's International Hydrology Programme as well as in research for the Department of Water Affairs.
- They are also an "African Centre", so it is important when applying for C2C status that the involvement in other African countries are emphasised. This will also support the process for endorsement by other regions in Africa.
- It is important to have direct buy-in and support from the relevant Ministry / Government Department prior and during the application for C2C status.
- The agreement between South Africa and UNESCO on the Water Centre does not seem to be in force yet and it would be useful to understand what aspects of the process / agreement are preventing the agreement from entering into force.

Discussion length was 15 minutes.

Minutes of the meeting that took place on 20 January 2015 at 11h30 at the DTPS.

Welcoming

Nozipho Sihlahla welcomes attendees.

List of presence

- Nozipho Sihlahla (NS)
- Andile Mgweba (AM)
- Coetzee Bester (CB)
- Rachel Fischer (RF)
- Daniella Bettoni (DB)
- Gabriella Bettoni (GB)

Amendments to the agenda

- The agenda will remain open. Take into consideration that point 5 and point 9 are linked, as they both focus on the MoA progress. The programme for the ACEIE Eastern Cape Event will be discussed at a later stage.

1. Report on WCED Project

- The ACEIE was invited by the Western Cape Education Department to help develop training manuals for schools. The focus areas will be Information Ethics and Cyber Safety/Security. The aim is to provide this training to 5000 classrooms/teachers.
- There was a meeting in November 2014 at the WCDED, together with Dr Beverley Malan, to link this project with the scope of the new MoA.
- The ACEIE is nearly ready to present the project. The aim is to present the WCED documents for discussion and inclusion in the new MoA. It should be noted the school-focus of the new MoA has not yet been confirmed.
- INTEL also wants to start school and community projects, by implementing tablets in 2 500 hot spots, which include areas such as clinics, museums and schools. They also want to use this project as a template when introducing the content to other countries in Africa.
- On the 2 - 3 February 2015, CB will conduct a meeting with the WCED to get feedback from the project.
- Teachers will be receiving content in four areas: Classroom work book (classroom content in a workbook), teachers guide for the classroom, a training course for school head masters and school governing body and community leaders, and a school level lexicon. This lexicon is similar to the current Concepts book, but will be a “downgraded” version.
- INTEL is going to be supplying some of the learning material.

NHI Pilot sites; Digital Opportunities Strategy and the new MoA

- Linked with point 9 (26 and 27 March 2015, Eastern Cape Event)

Meetings:

- A meeting took place on Friday the 16 January 2015 with DIRCO, to discuss the possibility of arranging one meeting where the committees of the Communication and Information Sector (CI), Information for All Programme (IFAP) and International Federation of Library Association (IFLA) can discuss their plans for 2015.
- The follow up meeting with DIRCO is on the 16 February 2015.
- The proposed dates for the CI, IFAP and the IFLA meeting are between the 18 February 2015 to 19 February 2015; these dates are dependent on availability.

Category 2 Centre Application process – feedback on meeting

- The ACEIE to set up a meeting with the “Water Centre” in Kwa-Zulu Natal to consult them on the processes related to applying for Category 2 Centre status.
- RF to contact Prof Matula for information on the Water Centre, which is possibly at UKZN.
- George Molepo (GM) will provide the forms and guidelines.

3 and 4 March 2015 UNESCO visit, Paris

- The ACEIE presentation to ‘Connecting the dots’ will be presented by CB.
- NS might possibly join.
- Meeting to be finalised for the 8 February 2015 with Prof Banda. Prof Banda has been requested to evaluate the ACEIE according to the DM’s request. If he cannot do the evaluation this will be communicated to the DM.
- The dates for the Windhoek workshop on Media and Journalism Studies are 9 -10 February 2015. NS attendance is dependent on availability.

26 and 27 March 2015, Eastern Cape Event

Links with point 5, which is NHI Pilot sites; Digital Opportunities Strategy and the new MoA.

- CB is comfortable with the progress of the new MoA. Various meetings have been held and the number of draft versions are currently on 7. There are new approaches and focus points. The hope is that the DM announces the new MoA on 27 March 2015. Should be noted also that the budget is linked to the terminology within the MoA.
- Need to arrange a one day workshop to listen to ITU and Deputy Minister and other important role players on how they fit into the process and what their responsibilities are.
- No focus will be on the Western Cape to date, because SA connect will complement the Department of Health programme to benefit other departments and local municipalities.
- Nobulali is doing the plan of action for Information Ethics for the 27 March 2015 conference which will be held in Port Elizabeth. Submission for the Deputy Minister is in the office of the premier.

- Nobulali is leaving the office of the premier on the 27 January 2015. A meeting needs to be arranged, in order for her to hand over the project.

Matters to be register on the agenda for the next meeting.

- A short meeting needs to be arranged to discuss the programme for the ACEIE Eastern Cape Event.

Date, time and venue of the next meeting

- Not finalised.

Concluding remarks and Closing

- Meeting ends at 12h45.

Minutes of the meeting that took place on 5th March 2015

Minutes kept and written by Mr Jacques Plouin

Meeting Report

Report on the meeting held on 5th March 2015 between

- Riel Miller for SHS
- Coetzee Bester, Coetzee Bester, Director of the African Centre of Excellence for Information Ethics (ACEIE) and Chairperson of the South African National IFAP Committee
- Rachel Fischer, researcher at the Center for Excellence for Information Ethics in South Africa
- Jacques Plouin for AFR

The Center for Excellence for Information Ethics in South Africa is leading institution in Africa in the fields of information ethics, an area where UNESCO is lead UN agency. The Center is in the final stages of becoming a category 2 institute.

The meeting was organized to discuss the possibility of UNESCO and the Center joining forces to prepare a conference to be held in October/November 2015 on the theme of info-ethics with a foresight approach.

The objective of the Center is to stimulate synergies among researchers/academics, decision-makers, civil society and the private sector so as to foster dialogue among African stakeholders as well as to facilitate North/South/South exchanges. The process could help obtain a better understanding of the African landscape on information ethics in general and to information and communication matters at large.

Riel stressed that UNESCO's approach is to organize Future Forums as opportunities to foster capacity building on the use of the future, knowledge creation, collective intelligence and communities of practice. UNESCO helps partners with the design of their processes, providing them with four types of results:

- learn about the future and foresight methodologies
- enhance capacity to use the future
- create knowledge (laboratory of ideas function)
- build communities of practice

It was agreed that an eventual Africa Future Forum on info-ethics could be organized in October/November with a view to achieve the afore-mentioned deliverables, where UNESCO would mainly assist with the design, bringing on board some of its partners, such as the African Futures Institute (chaired by Alioune Sall).

1.1. Opening and Welcoming: Nozipho Sihlahla welcomes the attendees of the meeting, both parties present from the OTP in Bisho, Eastern Cape and from the DTPS in Pretoria, Gauteng. Ms Sihlahla indicates that the Chairperson as DG is erroneous and apologises for any inconvenience caused. Ms Sihlahla will retain role as chairperson.

1.2. Attendance and Apologies:

Apologies: Ayanda Morepi, Thandwa Ndzundzu

1.3. Adoption of the Agenda: Agenda will remain open and used as a discussion guideline.

Section 2: Strategic Matters

2.1 Update on the Premier's decision

- Mr Zuko Mbele delivers the update. The Premier's decision is progressing slowly. The core staff at the OTP have been contacted and it is confirmed the date is penciled in the Premier's diary. The Premier has not yet responded to the letter of the Deputy Minister of the DTPS. If the Premier does not attend he will send a representative, most probably an MEC. At this stage he cannot confirm whether he will or won't be attending. The Premier is in Port Elizabeth on 25 March 2015 attending an IGR event.
- The meeting takes comfort in the feedback.
- Mr Zuko Mbele requests that the DTPS' Chief of Staff contact the Chief of Staff of the Premier for a letter of support. The OTP Chief of Staff's details are: Nhlengeno Mwanguzi, 072 900 4287.

2.2 Update on the venue

- Mr Coetzee Bester will provide the update. Because of the International presence of this event background must be provided. A few aspects to be considered are:
  - Event to be held in the Eastern Cape on 26 and 27 March 2015
  - International presence due to interaction with IFAP and UNESCO and the Southern Africa Region as well as academics across 16 countries in Africa
  - Approximately 100 people to attend
  - Attendance and presentations by the Premier and Deputy Minister.
- Due to time constraints and the Iron Man event to be held in Port Elizabeth during the same time, accommodation could not be procured for the invited guests. Although a venue was arranged at the NMMU University, this does not address the accommodation and transport issues. Accommodation/conference facilities with requested in East London and at that stage the ICC Premier Hotel was available.
- The meeting is requested to consider changing the venue. This is very important for the arrangements for accommodation, conference venue and the invitation letters to the guests.
- It is confirmed that these changes bring another dynamic into the organization of the event, including National Intelligence based on the international presence.
- The meeting confirms that the event can officially take place in East London, ICC Premier Hotel, also provided that the venue is still available.
- Mr Zuko Mbele indicates that the OTP will contribute towards the funding of the event. As GITO stated in the previous meeting on 27 January 2015, they will contribute R50 000-00 and this could be for the 100 participants attending on 27 March 2015 depending on the invoiced amounts.
- Mr Coetzee Bester requests the OTP to secure the best possible rates, together with this additional funding will be obtained from sponsors.
- A school-setup will be used at the conference centre instead of an auditorium style.

2.3 Invitations letters

- The list Ms Thandwa Ndzundzu distributed does not contain the entire list of invitees. It is requested that an updated list must be circulated.
- By 17 March 2015 everyone must RSVP.
- The venue will be confirmed as the ICC Premier Hotel in East London, Eastern Cape.
- The OTP and DTPS invitations will be signed by the Eastern Cape DG and the ACEIE will distribute invitations to academic and UNESCO structures.

2.4 Branding & communication

- Different parties will bring their own branding with, i.e. banners and brochures.
- The ACEIE will provide folders, bags, pens, note books and ACEIE academic books.

2.5 Minister's & Premier speaking notes

- Any Information Ethics content will be supported by the ACEIE if requested.
- Each office will contribute to the VIP's speech; DTPS to compile Minister's speaking notes whilst OTP will compile the Premier's speaking notes.

2.6 Any Other Business

- Programme will be updated and sent to OTP and DTPS representatives.
- Security issues will be dealt with the OTP.

2.7 Date of the next physical meeting and site visit

- Monday, 23 March 2015.
- At the offices of the OTP in Bisho, Eastern Cape.

Welcoming

Coetzee Bester welcomes the attendees.

List of presence

- Benson Lechaba (BL)
- Coetzee Bester (CB)
- Daniella Bettoni (DB)
- Gabriella Bettoni (GB)
- Nozipho Sihlahla (NS)
- Rachel Fischer (RF)

Amendments of the agenda

The agenda will stay open, were attendees may add information to it. RF wants to add the newsletter to the agenda. CB wants to discuss the SAPS cyber security workshop.

DTPS feedback of the ACIE annual report

NS has received all the documents, but is still in the process of reading through them. NS has taken all the necessary reports and financial reports through to the finance department, so that they have their own copies of the reports. The records have been submitted, where NS would like to see this report finalised by the end of June. Once the report has been finalised the ACEIE will be able to compile a three year report and place it all together as the official record of the activities of the centre (ACEIE). This three year report will be compiled once the format has been decided on upon guidance from the DTPS. The ACEE record keeping will be with the Dean of the faculty of EBIT and an annual report will lead up to the project report and will be made available as soon as possible.

Status of the MoA

NS stated that are currently at a procurement process and that they don't know which procurement needs to be followed. NS states that it will be impossible to sign a MoA without an official approval. Delay of the MoA is a technical DTPS process and has nothing to do with the quality of the ACEIE's work. Pressure has been placed on the director and has led to one looking for ad hoc money to lower the activities. NS states that she and the directors are working to ensure that they are capable of solving these problems.

It must be noted that the ACEIE cannot proceed with its projects for 2015 unless funding has been received. It is important however to maintain momentum while additional funding is being sought.

Status of the Category 2 Centre and Institution application

RF said that DIRCO requires feedback on the progress. So this meeting must focus on Point 5 to see the possibilities of what steps can be taken to move forward. RF said that all the documents must be finalised by the end of June for submission to UNESCO. CB illustrates on Point 5.1 that he has compiled a draft agreement for DPS and UNESCO and has sent it to Andile. CB also confirmed that we need a letter from Netcom to request their endorsement to see how this can benefit the whole country and not just the ACEIE at the University of Pretoria.

CB also made the following points:

1. We took note that some very important dates have passed without the necessary progress.
2. We understand the dilemma of both the application and the MoA and this application simultaneously on the table of the teaching.
- 3 The meeting requests that the director and the program coordinator urgency meet with SG of UNESO and if this matter could be done by possibility the end of this week; to discuss the implications of the lack of progress and the way forward. NS says that she will be able to meet on Wednesday morning (27th May 2015). NS has also recognised the importance of us doing this and putting more effort into it. With regards to the patron of information ethics, she does not know if we should wait for the MoA.

Amendments to the Agenda

- The ACEIE Newsletters:
RF said that a PDF version will be placed on the ACEIE website for people to obtain access to it. There will also be a Google form that will be created were anyone can e-mail the ACEIE with their information, which they would like added.
RF has been informed by Prof Bothma that this newsletter should be sent out every second month. The length of newsletter will depend on how much information is received from people. NS said that she is very happy with the look and the idea of the newsletter.
- CB wants to ask the School of Government if the ACEIE can have an event where the centre, the DTS, the School of Government and the SAPS can work together on an event that can touch on cyber security.
- NS was asked to consult with the School of Government to decide on a date for a meeting where the processes and ideas can be presented to them.
- CB said that he had a meeting with Intel to include their curriculum contribution. Two matters were discussed:
  1. Matter of information ethics.
  2. Project at the University of Limpopo.

Date, time and venue of the next meeting

CB stated that we need to have a meeting very soon after he has had a meeting with the security general. NS says that she will be able to meet again on the 1st of June 2015 at the University of Pretoria. The time of the meeting will be at 10:00-11:30.

Concluding remarks and Closing

CB thanked everyone and closed the meeting

Open agenda meeting

Rachel mentions that activities up to point 13 (Edu-week conference) of the proposed 2015 ACEIE activities have been completed

The Kenya activities are currently taking place 9-17 July 2015

Hellen Amunga is the person organizing the Kenya activities

Emails will be sent out regarding the activities that still need to take place

The IFLA conference will have staff from the Department of Information Science attending as representatives

Rachel notes that the IAJ has been included as part of the digital wellness conference

Nozipho hopes that the CI meeting in 5 August 2015 on the matter of IFLA/IFAP will have the necessary participants attending Coetzee: Rationale behind the school curriculum workshop meeting is a 3 year focus on IE school curriculum. The partnership with INTEL is focused on related matters.

INTEL developed content that has been localized by Dr Beverly Malan to be used in South Africa.

The digital wellness programme with INTEL has received positive reactions and is envisioned to be implemented in other countries including Rwanda, Zimbabwe and Kenya

Amendments to the proposed 2015 ACEIE activities:

- Point 10. The centre was repressed at the e-learning Africa conference by INTEL
- Point 14. The TBC changed to “ANIE chapter Kenya” East Africa conference
- Point 15. Change title to Digital Wellness Curriculum meeting
- Point 18. The dates are corrected to 23 August to 11 September 2015

Progress on the category 2 centre:

Nozipho indicates that she has sent an email and she awaits a response by 4pm 13 July 2015 otherwise she is continuing without the feedback

Progress on MOA:

Nozipho indicates that she has provided feedback on the matter

Financial Planning:

Plan A: MOA agreement approval

Nozipho is in the process of submitting an application on the matter of NHI pilot site workshops

Nozipho - Plan B: Quote basis workshops for NHI polite site workshops

- A workshop every month from August 2015 – April 2016
- The university of Pretoria would be consulted as a service provider and the ACEIE as a centre dealing with IE workshops would provide a quote towards the DTPS
- The location of the workshops would be detailed by a number of factors

Other matters:

Coetzee notes that the newsletter is a good platform to inform and report afterwards on matters and activities taking place in the IE field. It is a good way to report on IFAP and CI sector activities which are part of the objectives of IFAP.

Inclusion of CI sector is seen as beneficial, Nozipho indicates that she is comfortable with the outcome and the input given on the newsletter

Wait for the Digital Wellness Workshop to take place first before releasing issue 2 of the newsletter

Skills Training and Community Development

INTEL Education

Technology improves learning by enabling access to information and content experts, facilitating collaboration, encouraging creation, and improving communication. Students develop these skills while gaining experience with the same modern technology that they'll use in the business world-and increasingly, in their personal lives. Technology integration cannot be seen in isolation. The integration of technology has the potential to solve certain challenges with regards to equal access to information and at the same time unlocks other challenges which might not initially be as obvious to the average technology user. Intel Education and ACEIE collaboration aims to highlight these challenges and enable dialogue and awareness with regards to issues such as inclusive Education, Connecting woman and girls to the web and Internet safety.

Highlights

Representatives from the Postal Sector and universities within the SADC region were present.

Predominant focus was on research and the role of universities, hence this was not a government or specific industry-focused event.

Due consideration was given to researchers to inform them of the background of SAPOA and the challenges they are facing.

Very positive platform for engagement between Postal Services Sector and Universities, specifically due to common interests in the nature and impact of ICTs in both fields.

well as plenty opportunities to ask questions from the SAPOA representatives and networking between delegates. This first day sought to highlight the main objective of the event: to create a universities research forum towards knowledge creation and value addition. The first day's activities are summarized below in Points A to E under the Focus Areas.

Day Two's activities were geared towards the universities contribution to the discussion in light of the Action Plan for the following 12 months as well as the proposals on the composition of a Research Board. To achieve this, the researchers composed a presentation of the 6 Pillars/Approaches to facilitate the way forward for researchers from universities within SADC. These 6 Pillars/Approaches are captured under Point F of the Focus Areas below.

- Next time please make this workshop over two days, so that we have more time for activities. It is important that you give each participant time to present the activities; as thus is reflected on your manuals
- The workshop must be done twice per year
- The workshop was interesting. The facilitators clearly indicated or explained what information ethics is all about. The materials were relevant to my workshop. My suggestion is that this information need to reach everybody on Africa; and not just women because, women are very much busy, and do not have time to spread the information to the community

- The workshop was very interesting. We learnt more about ethics information. I am going to share the information with my colleagues, communities at home and others. I usually gave my password to other officials when I am too busy doing other tasks at my work place. Now from today, I will never give my password to any of my colleagues
- You must at least conduct this kind of workshop twice. Maybe in a year, not once because, I have learnt a lot about securing my computer and personal documents. You must also send me future workshops that you will be conducting, so that I can attend

Opening remarks from the Chair of the Intergovernmental Council of the Information for All Programme, Ms Chafica Abou Khaled Haddad

Mr Carlton Mukwevho, Secretary General of the South African National Commission for UNESCO,
Mr Hezekiel Dlamini UNESCO's Advisor for Communication and Information in UNESCO Regional Office for Southern Africa,

Mr Oteng Mokowe, Secretary General of the Botswana National Commission for UNESCO,
Dr Omponye Kereteletswe, Member of the IFAP Bureau and Chair of the IFAP Working Group on Information Literacy,

Mr Coetzee Bester, Director of the African Center of Excellence for Information Ethics and Chair of the South African National IFAP Committee,

Excellencies,

Ladies and Gentlemen,

In my capacity as Chairperson of UNESCO's intergovernmental Information for All Programme (IFAP), and on behalf of the IFAP Council and Bureau it is my pleasure to address you on the occasion of this two day conference on Information Ethics in Africa: Information Ethics and Digital Opportunities.

During these two days I am personally involved in advancing a partnership agreement with another inter-governmental body that will enable IFAP to extend its reach and impact. So please, allow me to request your understanding on my inability to participate in person at this event.

The intergovernmental Information for All Programme was established in 2001 and is UNESCO's only intergovernmental programme in the area of communication and information with a policy focus. IFAP provides a platform for international policy discussions, cooperation and the development of guidelines for action in the area of access to information and knowledge; and supports Member States to develop and implement national information policy and strategy frameworks.

IFAP activities are focused on six priority areas - information accessibility, information for development, information ethics, information literacy, information preservation and multilingualism in cyberspace.

Over the past three months of 2015 IFAP has organized a number of high impact international activities. In February, under the information for development priority, IFAP organized a ground-breaking international conference in Israel that sought to deepen understanding of how the long-term interactions between digital media, on one hand and individuals and society on the other, are affecting well-being. This event also established an on-line Forum to support international collaboration and exchange on the development of indicators and the establishment of a program to measure and assess well-being. Also in, February under the Information accessibility priority the second international conference on Free and Open Source Software was organized in Oman at the Sultan Qaboos University. Then in early March IFAP contributed to the organization of UNESCO's international conference CONNECTing the Dots which discussed UNESCO's Internet-related study on access, free expression privacy and ethics.

Other forthcoming events include an international conference at UNESCO on the Internet as a tool for development of youth against all forms of extremism and radicalism, a series of youth focused pilot projects as well as several regional meeting on information ethics in Latin America and the Caribbean.

As part of IFAP's policy focus it has developed tools such as the IFAP National Information Society Policy Template which provides guidance to Member States in their policy reviewing, and implementation practices.

In partnership with the United Nations University (UNU) we have organized through a joint programme "Executive Training in Foundations of Information and Knowledge Leadership", capacity building for senior government officials to develop proficiency in the use of the IFAP Template. To date trainings have been conducted for East African officials from Burundi, Kenya, Rwanda, South Sudan, Tanzania and Uganda and in South-East Asia for officials in Mongolia, Myanmar and Thailand. Similar activities are also planned for Latin America and the Caribbean as well as other regions of Africa.

Although I cannot join you today, I would like to underscore the importance that I personally attach, to the achievements and outstanding work that the African Network for Information Ethics (ANIE) and the African Center of Excellence for Information Ethics (ACEIE) have been conducting across Africa in IFAP's information ethics priority area.

In 2007, UNESCO in partnership with the African Network for Information Ethics, the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, the International Center for Information Ethics and the University of Pretoria helped to support the creation of a network of sub-Saharan universities working in the field of information ethics.

The recommendations and ideas developed by this first ANIE conference and fuelled by the commitment of its member enabled this modest beginning to grow into what is now an active continent-wide network that connects universities and researchers in Southern, Eastern, Western and Central Africa.

Out of this effort we have seen curricula created, training materials developed as well as university courses offered. Even more impressive is the fact that this endeavor has not restricted itself to the university community but has gone out to undertake research to gain insights into how the increasing penetration of internet and access to mobile telephony is impacting societal, legal and ethical issues across the entire continent.

Through events like today's conference, your efforts to create forums for discussions and reflections with policy makers are serving not only to raise awareness but also to shape national strategies that enable African nations to harness the opportunities of Knowledge Societies. This is the spirit of IFAP.

ANIE's and ACEIE's work is also informing and contributing to IFAP's international actions. UNESCO's Internet-related study on access, free expression, privacy and ethics benefitted from your response to the survey questionnaire and the participation of Mr Coetzee Bester in the UNESCO expert panel and drafting group. UNESCO's review of the World Summit on the Information Society's Action Line was also enriched by an excellent case study on the ethical implications of mobile money that ANIE and the ACEIE provided. Mobile phones will be the platform through which the remaining 4 billion persons without Internet access will become connected. So this work resonated with developed and developing countries who are seeking to develop policy guidelines as they seek to benefit from Africa's innovations with mobile payment systems. We salute you on your pioneering research efforts that are supporting evidence based policy-making.

For these reasons we are particularly supportive of the ACEIE's aspirations to become a UNESCO Category II Center and we look forward to continuing and expanding our cooperation.

In closing let me say how grateful IFAP is to the Government of South Africa, who through its Department of Telecommunications and Postal Services and the UNESCO National Commission for South Africa has been supporting the operation of the African Center of Excellence for Information Ethics, and paving the way for ANIE and the Center's continued growth and success.

I wish you fruitful deliberations and look forward to supporting you in taking forward the conference's outcomes and recommendations.

Thank you for your attention.

Speech by the Deputy Minister of the Department of Telecommunications and Postal Services, Hon. Prof. Hlengiwe Mkhize

Theme: Information Ethics and Digital Opportunities

Professor Bothma from the African Centre of Excellence - University of Pretoria, representatives of the Eastern Cape government, the executive Mayor, officials of the national governments who are central to the program, traditional leaders in our midst, members of the religious fraternity, our brothers and sisters from across the continent, members of the media and friends, good morning, molweni.

I welcome you all to this high level conference, which is taking place in this historic province, the Eastern Cape, the home of our legends. Many of our leaders were born and bred in this province, I am talking about our stalwarts such as uTata Nelson Mandela, OR Tambo, Steve Biko, Govan Mbeki, Thabo Mbeki, Chris Hani, Brigalia Bam and many others. Above everything, this province was the intellectual capital which produced African world renowned leaders. Our leaders like uTata Nelson Mandela, Oliver Tambo, Mangosuthu Buthelezi, Robert Sobukwe, Desmond Tutu, Kenneth Kaunda, Julius Nyerere, Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo studied at the University of Fort Hare. I presume I am talking on behalf of all the delegates when I congratulate the organising team from the African Centre of Excellence in Information Ethics (ACEIE), the Department of Telecommunications and Postal Services as well as UNESCO for the commendable ground work that has already been done so far. This is a perfect example of the smart partnerships advocated by the National Development Plan (NDP) vision 2030.

The quest for an idyllic paradigm in creating an inclusive information society in democracy was articulated by the first President of the democratic Republic of South Africa, Tata Nelson Mandela, when he was giving a concluding address at the opening ceremony of the Telecom 95 during the 7th World Telecommunications Forum in October 1995 in Geneva. He emphasized the importance of skilling young people for the information revolution, by saying:

“Many of us here today have spent much of our lives without access to telecommunications or information services, and many of us will not live to see the flowering of the information age, but our children will. They are our greatest asset. And it is our responsibility to give them the skills and insight to build the information societies of the future. The young people of the world must be empowered to participate in the building of the information age. They must become the citizens of the global information society. And we must create the best conditions for their participation”.

Yesterday delegates confirmed Tata Madiba's dream of an information society as they shared about our countries' resolve to fast-track broadband penetration for economic inclusion and many other e-strategies. In South Africa for example we aim to reach 100% broadband adoption by 2020 at a speed averaging 10 Megabits per second (Mbps) for government institutions, and 80% of schools and health facilities at 100Mbps and for citizens at a speed of 5Mbps. Phase one of our SA Connect project will commence next month with the target of connecting 580 clinics, 4 444 schools, 182 police stations and 572 other government offices to the Internet by June.

We are all in agreement that information ethics is our next ICT challenge. One of the most challenging ethical issues is the inequity of access to ICT between countries, and between urban and rural communities within countries. Information Ethics in democracy, is often embedded in dilemmas and social contradictions while ideally ICT knowledge and skills should be for accessibility, development, ethics, literacy, multi-linguism, cyberspace and preservation, in practice, there are instances where ICTs are used in ways which undermine the core value of human rights and dignity. The Tshwane Declaration adopted in 2007 by the African Information Ethics Conference understood ‘Information Ethics to be the field of critical reflection on moral values and practices with regard to the production, storage, distribution and access to knowledge as well as to all kinds of processes, systems and Media, Information and Communication Technologies’.

This conference empowers us to interrogate issues of information integrity and security as the usage of Information and Communication Technologies (ICTs) increases. Given the widespread accessibility of the ICTs, society must be prepared to defend the values enshrined in the culture of human rights, social justice and sustainable development.

Earlier on, I spoke about contradictions and tensions in the ICT revolution today. There are segments of society which seems to lay much emphasis on freedom of speech and access to information. We need to move away from focusing purely on these two fundamental rights by also emphasising the post-2015 developmental agenda objectives, which aims at dismantling the triple challenges of poverty, inequality and unemployment.

There are many questions that we cannot answer today like: 'how do we use Information Ethics to defend our own identity, cultures and traditions online'; failure to do that will result in us going to the international stage with nothingness.

Hence, I am tempted to refer to broader definitions of Information Ethics so as to appreciate the ultimate value of Information Ethics in real life:

Information ethics has been defined as "the branch of ethics that focuses on the relationship between the creation, organization, dissemination, and use of information, and the ethical standards and moral codes governing human conduct in society"

According to Bynum, Terrell, "Computer and information ethics, in the broadest sense of this phrase, can be understood as that branch of applied ethics which studies and analyzes social and ethical impacts of ICT."

According to the International Telecommunications Union (ITU), in an ideal world, digital opportunity would mean:

- The whole population having easy access to ICTs at affordable prices;
- All homes equipped with ICT devices;
- All citizens having mobile ICT devices; and
- Everyone using broadband.

The ITU stated that – "it is necessary to measure aspects like price and affordability of ICTs relative to average income, ICT penetration of households and individuals relative to 100% ownership and to measure growth in the ICT development of the economy. Information and Communication Technologies (ICTs) are fundamentally changing how firms do business and how countries compete in the new 'information economy'. Developing countries must ensure that they are not left behind in the emerging Information Society – not just in basic infrastructure, but in their abilities to compete in service industries, experience, and skilled labour.

At the World Summit on the Information Society (WSIS) (Geneva 2003 and Tunis 2005), governments and world leaders made a strong commitment towards building a people-centred, inclusive and development-oriented Information Society for all, where everyone can access, utilize and share information and knowledge."

The ITU World Information Society report, challenges the world community to build an Information Society that is 'people-centred, inclusive and development-oriented' and where 'everyone can create, access, utilize and share information and knowledge'. Furthermore, paragraph 21 of the Geneva Declaration contains a commitment to turn the 'digital divide into a digital opportunity for all' and to provide access to Information and Communication Technology (ICT) infrastructure and services that are 'universal, ubiquitous, equitable and affordable'.

The World Summit on Information Society (WSIS) in Tunis and Geneva pronounced on the actions that needed to be undertaken by countries in order to make this a reality. Amongst those actions, was that countries needed to ensure that "Information Society is subject to universally held values and promotes the common good and to prevent abusive uses of ICTs".

South Africa subsequently developed an Information Society and Development Plan which provided a succinct guideline on how to implement the WSIS recommendations in a coordinated and inclusive manner.

Distinguished guests, having considered the efforts that were done by the academics through the African Network on Information Ethics, in 2012, my Department took a bold decision to partner with the University of Pretoria towards the establishment of the African Centre of Excellence for Information Ethics, through a partnership with the University of Pretoria. We gave them a broad mandate to coordinate research to inform policy decisions on the Information Ethics Programme for Africa. When the work commenced, we set a target to work with 12 universities. We have since made great strides and have now extended the programme to include 80 tertiary institutions across 19 African States. The African Network on Information Ethics (ANIE) has now grown from 12 people to 279 academic role players and researchers.

In 2013, Cabinet approved the national Broadband Policy- SA Connect. SA Connect clearly identifies four areas of interventions, called strategies in the policy, which have to be implemented for us to see the realities of broadband access in the country. These are: digital readiness, digital development, digital future and digital opportunity. SA Connect adopts an integrated and cross-cutting, but citizen-centric approach to broadband deployment. The approach leverages the linkages in the ICT ecosystem to create a more equitable knowledge economy and information society. South Africa Connect mobilizes the capabilities, resources and commitment of both the public and private sectors, together with civil society, in order to connect South Africans to each other as well as South Africa to the continent and the world. This collective energy will be channeled towards realizing a bold vision of a connected society.

Of the four strategies of SA Connect, I will pick the last but equally important one - The Digital Opportunities Strategy.

The World Information Society report states that the policy tools to promote digital opportunity, in both developed and developing countries, are not necessarily unique. Different combinations of policy instruments and institutional frameworks can result in positive outcomes. These are -

- Opportunity: Promoting Affordability;
- Infrastructure: universal access/service policies;

- Utilization: broadband and wireless technologies.

Opportunity: Promoting Affordability

To promote affordability, the DTPS has committed to a Programme of Action on Cost to Communicate. So far, this Programme has ensured the successful reduction of wholesale call termination rates by ICASA. The Department is currently finalising a policy direction on Transparent Pricing and conducting a study on National Roaming. In the next financial year the Department will prepare a roaming policy direction and will develop a draft local loop unbundling strategy to improve quality, affordability and reach of the local loop. A monitoring and evaluation framework will be established to monitor impact of the implementation of interventions to reduce the cost to communicate such as mobile termination rates. The interventions to reduce data costs following the broadband value chain analysis are also being considered and a policy direction will be issued to ICASA.

Utilization: broadband and wireless technologies.

To promote utilization, the SA Connect policy includes a Digital opportunity strategy. Through this strategy a multifaceted series of interventions will stimulate demand through the e-readiness programmes in schools and clinics, formal skills development in curricula and general awareness and e-literacy campaigns. The high-level skills required by the sector, and the user skills necessary for social and economic inclusion will be targeted in schools, universities and community access centres to secure and create work. There will be an alignment of broadband initiatives with other government department programmes in Research and Development (R&D), innovation and entrepreneurialism.

Realising these digital opportunities requires demand to be stimulated and use and uptake to be increased through the promotion of local and relevant content and applications.

This is necessary both for the revitalisation of the economy and also for enhancing citizenship and democracy in the digital age, and creating opportunities for participation and consultation.

Standards for open data will be set to create new norms around public information that make it widely available and technically accessible. These will not only enable the use and re-use of public information for public purposes but also stimulate the development of applications and content for private and commercial purposes that can enhance the flow of information and add value to public information.

Working with the Centre, we have developed material which awakens people's consciousness in relation to what is ethical and unethical in the Information Society. We would like to use this material to promote Ethics within the education sector.

Schools are promoting e-Learning environment and that is witnessed by the massive deployment of ICT gadgets such as tablets and Inter-active boards to schools. All these initiatives are inevitably exposing the students to the Internet world, where boundaries are only virtual- if there is such. It is our responsibility to educate them about the conscious decision to create one's own boundaries in consuming, creating and disseminating information, without limiting them from being active participants in this Information and knowledge Society. I intend to work very close with the Departments of Basic Education and Higher Education and Training as we promote Ethics for ICTs in Education, for both the in school and the out-of-school youth.

The Digital Opportunities programme has set out 7 strategic pillars; namely: Capacity Development, Digital Entrepreneurship, Digital Awareness and e-Inclusion, e-Government, ICT Applications, Local Content Development and Research and Development. The Information Ethics Programme is linked to the Digital Awareness and e-Inclusion Pillar.

We will implement this programme in six Provinces and eight Districts which are earmarked for NHI trials as outlined by the President in the State of the Nation Address. These are: OR. Tambo (EC), Gert Sibande (MP), Pixley ka Seme (NC), Thabo Mofutsanyane (FS), Umgungundlovu & Umzinyathi (KZN), Dr Kenneth Kaunda (NW) .

Implementation of the Digital Opportunities Programme will require collaboration between government, academia, civil society and business due to its massive nature and intensive amount of work that needs to be done. We are therefore, pleased to see the participation of business in this conference, because it edifies our desire for smart partnerships around specific initiatives, like the role of, for example, Intel in promoting gender equality and mainstreaming under the brand name "She will connect" and many other digital opportunities.

Conclusion

Before I conclude my speech, I would like to make this undertaking that the Information Ethics Programme has been allocated within my portfolio in the Department, I will therefore, ensure that the good work that has been started continues and is strengthened to ensure maximum impact. I make a call to the ICT industry and relevant bodies to join us in making sure that the activities related to Information Ethics are implemented widely and even beyond our borders. Through integration and coordination of strategies by UNESCO, IFAB and academic institutions present here we will like to locate information ethics at the centre of our ICT revolution and the radical socio-economic transformation agenda.

I thank you.

A local platform for international participation

Coetzee Bester and Rachel Fischer

The African Centre of Excellence for information Ethics (ACEIE), housed by the Department of Information Science at the University of Pretoria, was officially established in May 2012. Its purpose is to formally reflect on the activities relating to, and history of information ethics in Africa. This reflection should contribute to research on the topic and allow networking with other academics in the field. Since its establishment, the Centre has made good progress in meeting its objectives.

When the memorandum of agreement (MoA) was signed between the Department of Communications (DoC) and the University of Pretoria on 15 December 2011, six objectives were agreed upon. Each activity has to answer to one or more of the six objectives. Apart from the general office duties and research projects that have to be an ongoing endeavour of the ACEIE, it also has to contribute to the body of knowledge of information ethics on local and international levels. Two of the objectives are of specific relevance in this regard:

- Objective 1: Development of information societies:
To create an awareness of the importance of information in different communities and among responsible persons and information practitioners, in terms of where to access information and how to overcome inequalities in access to information, how to integrate it, and to create an awareness of society's dependence on information.
- Objective 6: Internationalisation of information ethics policies and practices:
To promote key proposals and research, as agreed, concerning the research on information ethics and its application, for consideration within African and international intergovernmental organisations, such as the African Union (AU), African regional communities and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO).

Based on these two objectives, the ACEIE has proceeded to engage with international role players on four levels:

- The design and rollout of an information ethics curriculum across universities in Africa
- Meetings with relevant stakeholders
- Interaction with the UNESCO National Commission offices in the southern African region
- Workshops and conferences at universities across Africa

Good progress has been made with the development of the information ethics curriculum. The first workshop in this regard took place at the University of Pretoria in July 2011, and hosted participants from Germany, the USA, Uganda, Kenya and South Africa. The framework for the curriculum was created at this workshop, and the first draft was made available to the universities concerned by November 2011 to allow them to start implementing the curriculum.

The second workshop took place in Nairobi, Kenya, in July 2012 and specifically addressed the information ethics issues concerning social media. By raising their concerns, the participants could address the content requirements of the curriculum to make it even more relevant for universities and individuals already experiencing problems and opportunities with social media. This workshop experience was further developed into a conference theme – “The cheetah generation's fast track to social media” – for the third International African Network for Information Ethics (ANIE) conference on information ethics. At this conference, held in South Africa in September 2012, the participants of the Kenyan workshop presented their research on the information ethics concerns of social media. The pre-conference workshop further elaborated on the curriculum content.

→ The ANIE Pre-conference Workshop was held at the LAICO Regency Hotel in Kenya on 3 June 2012.

In July 2013, the ACEIE team visited Kampala, Uganda, where a fourth workshop was hosted together with Makerere University. This workshop predominantly involved academia from universities across Uganda, but participants from Tanzania and Kenya were also present. This workshop further extended participation to include the African Centre of Cyber Law and Cyber Crime Prevention (ACCP) and the United Nations African Institute for the Prevention of Crime and Treatment of Offenders (UNAFRI). The next African workshop took place in Zanzibar, Tanzania, in October 2013. This involved academia from both the mainland and the island. The Minister of Trade, Industry and Marketing provided further support for this event, as well as for the process of raising awareness on the topic of information ethics. One of the results of this workshop was the second draft of the information ethics curriculum, which was subsequently distributed.

After extensive research and revision by the curriculum specialist, Dr Beverley Malan, and the Director of the ACEIE, Coetzee Bester, the third draft of the information ethics curriculum was presented at the fifth information ethics workshop in Kampala, Uganda, in January 2014. Makerere University hosted this event and included academia from across Uganda. The final product of all the information ethics curriculum research was formally launched at the fourth international ANIE conference in July 2014, which was once again hosted in Kampala, Uganda.

The ACEIE collaborated with UNESCO and other organisations in a number of meetings. It was invited by UNESCO to address and participate in the World Summit on the Information Society (WSIS) session that addressed the current and emerging ethical and societal challenges of the information society, which took place on 26 February 2013 as part of the WSIS+10 review meeting in Paris. The theme of the event was "Knowledge societies for peace and sustainable development".

→ The African workshop in Tanzania (above and below) resulted in the second draft of the Information Ethics curriculum.

Following the event in February 2013, the ACEIE also attended the 37th UNESCO General Conference in Paris, France, in November 2013, where the Centre participated in interpreting the draft resolution for Major Programme V – sustaining peace and development through freedom of expression and access to knowledge. Activities focused on Strategic Objective 9 (promoting freedom of expression, media development and access to information and knowledge). The ACEIE worked on Strategic Objective 9 (UNESCO Document 37 C/5 – Volume 1 – Draft Resolutions), particularly 13 focus areas and two main lines of action that will guide activities and reports for the period 2014 to 2017. The aim of this was to analyse the content of the documents on Strategic Objective 9 and to explore the content in terms of the African milieu, traditions and background. The ACEIE presented practical details for implementation project proposals to the UNESCO Director-General in achieving Strategic Objective 9 in Africa.

During 2013, the ACEIE actively participated in the activities of SA Natcom, the communication and information sector and other Africa-based UNESCO structures to achieve the related UNESCO and WSIS objectives. The Africa-based activities included a number of projects of the UNESCO southern African region. On 28 and 29 April 2014, the ACEIE addressed the UNESCO Multisectoral Regional Office in southern Africa in Harare, Zimbabwe, during a joint consultative meeting of UNESCO national commissions in southern Africa. It led to a UNESCO request to the ACEIE to conduct further workshops in Lesotho, Mozambique, Namibia and Swaziland.

International cooperation is important for achieving the aims of the Centre. The conferences that have been held and the projects that have been initiated have led to the ACEIE collaborating on various issues with local, African and overseas universities. This has resulted in research projects and publications in accredited journals. ●

ACEIE seals collaboration with UNESCO

The African Centre of Excellence for Information Ethics (ACEIE) signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with the South African National Commission (SA NatCom) of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO) on 29 July 2015.

Mr Carlton Mukwevho, Secretary-General of SA NatCom, and Prof Sunil Maharaj, Dean of the Faculty of Engineering, Built Environment and Information Technology, signed the agreement on behalf of their respective organisations.

The MoU follows on a history of collaboration between UNESCO and the ACEIE since the Centre's establishment in 2012, and commits UNESCO to provide funding for five regional projects until December 2015. This marks the occasion of another contract guaranteeing successful collaboration opportunities that will strengthen the ACEIE's current interaction with 80 institutions across 19 African countries.

The ACEIE is housed in the Department of Information Science, and its main objectives are to act as a facilitator, to conduct research in information ethics locally and internationally, and to coordinate awareness and knowledge-enhancing activities locally and across the continent.

The five projects sponsored by UNESCO support these goals.

Project 1: Learners with disabilities, cyberbullying and sexting

This project formed part of the ACEIE's Digital Wellness Programme and Inclusion of Disability Awareness activities between 23 and 26 June 2015 in Cape Town, South Africa. It focused on raising awareness on cyber safety issues affecting people with disabilities.

Project 2: Community rollout of information ethics within a volunteer programme

In July 2015, a volunteer programme, championed by Intel as a UNESCO-recognised partner, was launched in Nairobi, Kenya. Furthermore, an Information Ethics teaching and curriculum conference was hosted by the Kenyatta University.

Project 3: Information Ethics school curriculum development

The ACEIE, in collaboration with the University of Pretoria, Intel and the Department of Basic Education, is participating in research to develop a school curriculum specifically targeted at basic education and community training. A workshop on this development project was held in Pretoria in July 2015.

Project 4: Policy design workshop: digital safety and wellness in schools

Together with the National Science and Technology Forum and the Civilian Secretariat for Police, the ACEIE hosted a Digital Safety and Wellness Policy design workshop in Kempton Park on 21 August 2015. At the workshop, security and safety issues for the public sphere, as well as for the cyber sphere, were highlighted.

Project 5: Conference on Digital Wellness in Africa

A three-day conference on digital wellness in Africa is being held at the University of Pretoria in November 2015. It will combine the theme of digital wellness with the UNESCO communication and information sector programmes of the Information for All Programme (IFAP) and the International Programme for the Development of Communication (IPDC), and will be co-hosted by the Institute for the Advancement of Journalism. 📍

Coetzee Bester heads up national IFAP Committee

The Director of the African Centre of Excellence for Information Ethics,
Coetzee Bester,
was elected as the Chairperson of the National
Information for All
Programme (IFAP)
Committee on 15 October 2014.

This coincided with the establishment of the National IFAP Committee on the same day.

Bester has been involved in the African Network for Information Ethics (ANIE) and the ACEIE for some years, and has been an invaluable partner in several activities related to IFAP at national, regional and international level. Conversely, the support of the UNESCO structures related to information ethics has enabled the ACEIE to do groundbreaking research that has benefited more than 50 academic and training institutions in Africa who are members of ANIE.

Established in 2001, IFAP is an intergovernmental programme of UNESCO. It serves as a platform for international policy discussions, cooperation and the development of guidelines for action with regard to access to information and knowledge. Member states receive support in developing and implementing their national information policy and strategy frameworks.

The National IFAP Committee consists of members from government, as well as non-governmental and civil society organisations. Its work focuses on IFAP's six priority areas.

The Committee's aim is to support the development and implementation of information policy strategies and frameworks in South Africa. It will also contribute to strengthening IFAP's contribution in Southern Africa. A regional meeting of Southern African national IFAP committees took place in April 2015.

The ACEIE will provide office space to the South African National IFAP Committee. 📍

Collaboration and innovation create interesting undergraduate studies

Rachel Fischer and Erin Klazar

In the past three years, the Department of Information Science has put a great deal of effort into integrating innovation into its research and teaching activities. The popular academic slogan, “publish or perish”, has contributed to this impetus. Demanding circumstances have led to creative solutions.

One of these was the reinvention of the course curricula to contribute to research in undergraduate modules. There is a broad scope of opportunity for research and publications on teaching methods at university level, as well as possibilities to present workshops on these methods.

The African Centre of Excellence for Information Ethics (ACEIE), hosted in the Department of Information Science and funded by the national Department of Telecommunication and Postal Services (DTPS) and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO), played a pivotal role in adapting these curricula.

The ACEIE's focal points are as follows:

- Research on information ethics-related issues
- Creating an Information Ethics curriculum to be rolled out at universities across Africa
- Presenting workshops dealing with information ethics-related issues at university and government level across South Africa and Africa

Faced with issues raised across all levels of interaction, from government officials to university lecturers, the Centre could do research on critical questions related to information ethics and apply it in class. Similarly, the lessons learned in the classroom could be applied to the ACEIE's interaction with government and the private sector. The results of workshop presentations and classroom lecturing activities have truly synthesised the two separate spheres.

Furthermore, what initially started off as a solution to new research demands on personnel, has resulted in published articles and numerous conference and workshop presentations.

Classroom activities

New content and research opportunities have been inspired by the modules offered by the Department of Information Science, the lecturers presenting them and interaction with government and industry.

INL 140 – Information Science: Introduction to Information and Communication Technology

Intel and Intel Security collaborated with the Department on a concept for a volunteer project between Intel and universities in South Africa. The University of Pretoria was selected to host the pilot project. Students were instructed to create videos in which they had to address set topics, targeted at the level of their younger sisters, brothers or cousins who were still in school (between the ages of 11 and 14). Together with these videos – on whichever devices were available – the students had to develop a five-step slogan that would be striking enough to remember when confronted with a cyber-related issue. The five best videos were selected and presented during the Intel Security Cyber Safety Day on 21 October 2014. The best group received prizes from Intel, and since then, Intel has become interested in using the videos to raise awareness in other regions where they plan to roll out similar projects.

INL 240 – Information Science: Social and ethical impact

Students of INL 240 were each required to do research on one of five set themes related to information ethics. They also had to write academic articles on these issues and present them during a student conference. The experience gained and the research conducted resulted in an article, as well as numerous conference and workshop presentations. An article on this specific experience, “Teaching Information Ethics at second-year level at the University of Pretoria: a case-study of integrating theoretical information ethics with practical application”, by Erin Hommes (Klazar) and Rachel Bothma (Fischer), was published in the Innovation Journal.

This year, the third Undergraduate Information Ethics Conference was held on the Hatfield Campus. It has so far produced a multitude of student articles and presentations, but its greatest contribution is that it annually gave the best group the opportunity to present at the student leg of the Annual Department of Information Studies International Conference, held at the University of Zululand.

JCP 202 – Community-based project

The success of the INL 140 pilot project led to the realisation that the five-minute videos and awareness-raising campaigns should not be limited to university students. They could be repackaged and presented to communities who might be experiencing similar cyber-related issues.

Since all second-year students in engineering, built environment and information technology must enrol for the Community-based Project (JCP 202) module, the coordinator, Dr Martina Jordaan, was consulted to gauge the probability of integrating aspects of the lessons learnt in INL 140 and the content developed in INL 240 in a repackaged form. This would be presented to targeted communities as part of community-based projects.

Since the initial Cyber Safety Day, Intel, the ACEIE and the Department of Information Science has renamed this cluster of projects the Digital Wellness Project. This allowed the realignment of content and module objectives to ensure that a golden thread runs throughout these three undergraduate modules.

The way forward

Following the World Summit on the Information Society (WSIS), the ACEIE and the Department of Information Science sought to address Action Line C10, contained in the WSIS+10 Action Lines, in the above modules in particular. This action line refers to the ethical dimension of the information society, and states that this society “should be subject to universally held values and promote common good, and ... prevent abusive uses of ICTs”. ➡

Building an ethical information society in Africa

Anneline du Preez

In May 2012, the African Centre of Excellence for Information Ethics (ACEIE) was established at the University of Pretoria. This collaborative initiative between the South African Department of Communications, the United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO) and various universities across Africa is housed by the Department of Information Science in the School of Information Technology and is led by Mr Coetzee Bester.

Information ethics is a descriptive and emancipatory discipline that studies changes in the relationship between people and the world due to information and communication technologies. In Africa, the field provides a unique platform for building an information and knowledge society driven by critical reflection on ethos and values within the African context. It addresses opportunities and challenges unique to the development of African societies.

The establishment of this Centre was necessitated by various converging factors. The rollout of broadband in South Africa and Africa made information more readily available. The recent construction of various submarine cables, including SEACOM, directly contributed to the expansion of broadband capacity on the continent. The growth in communication and information management capacity contributed significantly to the development and management of e-skills, e-governance and information ethics, and the challenges related to these. It was found that students were not properly introduced to information ethics and did not fully understand the concept and purpose as well as the practice of this discipline.

One of the main objectives of ACEIE is to develop a curriculum for teaching information ethics in Africa.

During the first three years of its existence, the Centre will develop a curriculum structure and implement the content at universities in Africa. A group of more than 30 international academics are working together on this pilot project.

According to a memorandum of agreement between the University of Pretoria and the national Department of Communications (who made available R7.4 million over three years), the Centre will also perform the following functions:

- Support the establishment of other ethics centres in Africa through the African Ethics Research Centre Network.
- Convene, coordinate and administer an ethics conference and follow up on the implementation of conference resolutions.
- Facilitate the hosting of Ethics Awards Ceremonies in collaboration with other partners.
- Focus on research and training in information ethics.

Other functions of the Centre include the following:

- Develop short courses for governmental officials in the nine provinces of South Africa.
- Encourage Information Ethics workshops where academics and practitioners can convene

The national Department of Communications awarded R7.4 million to the Centre to support, inter alia, the establishment of other ethics centres in Africa, to organise conferences, and to support research and training in information ethics.

in order to exchange knowledge and enhance the practical dynamics of Information Ethics.

- Function as a centre where researchers can come together to endorse key proposals concerning information ethics and its application in African societies, governments and institutions.
- Maintain its collaborative relationships with UNESCO; the E-skills Hub in the Department of Informatics; and the Department of Information Science.

Throughout 2012, various academics were approached to do research on the impact or importance of information ethics in their field of expertise. These academics will have the opportunity to publish their articles in the 2013 Innovation Journal, of which a special edition is focused on information ethics. ➤

Establishing a centre of excellence for information ethics

In 2007, a group of international academics in the fields of information technology, philosophy and politics formed an academic network to conduct research on information ethics.

This network is now known as the African Network on Information Ethics (ANIE). It identified a gap in the academic representation of the African continent on the global stage, specifically pertaining to information ethics. It therefore organised events to stimulate research on information ethics in Africa.

The result of these activities and international collaboration led to a partnership with the national Department of Communication, the United Nations Education, Scientific and Culture Organisation (UNESCO) and various universities across Africa.

The collaboration eventually contributed to the establishment of the African Centre of Excellence for Information Ethics (ACEIE) in the Department of Information Science at the University of Pretoria in 2012.

Its purpose is to formally reflect on the activities and history of information ethics in Africa. This reflection should contribute to research on the topic and allow networking with other academics in the field.
