

Invitation

Erasmus Mundus Joint Masters: Resilience in Educational Contexts

Wednesday, 14 August 2024

UNIVERSITEIT VAN PRETORIA
UNIVERSITY OF PRETORIA
YUNIBESITHI YA PRETORIA

Make today matter

www.up.ac.za

The Interdisciplinary School of Psychology (ISOP) invites you to join Prof Anastassios (Tassos) Matsopoulos for a virtual presentation.

Date: Wednesday, 14 August 2024
Time: 10:00 to 12:00
Platform: BlackBoard Collaborate (Click on the link below to join on the day)
<https://eu.bbcollab.com/guest/43945bf9dc394869b0286da91ef8f165>
RSVP by: Monday, 12 August 2024. Please click on the registration link to RSVP.
Enquiries: Prof David Maree (Head of School) at david.maree@up.ac.za

About the Presenter:

Prof. Matsopoulos is a distinguished school psychologist certified in New York State and licensed in Greece and Cyprus. He is currently an Associate Professor of School Psychology at the University of Crete, where he also directs the School Psychology Lab/Research Unit. His research interests include prevention, resilience, the well-being of children and educators, and international school psychology. Prof. Matsopoulos has participated in numerous international projects and co-authored the resilience curriculum "RESCUR-Surfing the Waves." He has co-edited special issues in esteemed journals and authored several books, with his latest work focusing on resilience and mental health in schools. Prof. Matsopoulos also has extensive global consulting experience and founded the Hellenic Association of School Psychology.

He co-edited a special issue of the School Psychology International entitled "Resilience to COVID-19 challenges: Lessons for school psychologists serving school attending youth with experiences of marginalization" with Prof. Linda Theron (Department of Educational Psychology, UP).

Make today matter

