The student life cycle commences with student recruitment, often two or more years before entering university. The scholarships of teaching and learning and research (enriched by community engagement) span registration through to final assessment and graduation. Affiliation with the alumni core encourages life-long learning and continued engagement with the University as the alma mater.