Module-inhoud

The primary purpose of this course is to equip students with the conceptual and practical skills to enable them to contribute to the development and maintenance of effective organisations. You will have a greater understanding of how organisations need to be designed and to change to accommodate the challenges of global competitiveness and South Africa's particular imperatives. You will also learn how an organisation's structure impacts on its performance. You will appreciate the challenges associated with the management of change in organisations, and develop the skills and insights required to effect change in your own organisation. In the process you will become more aware of your own values, beliefs and actions and, if necessary, change the way you think and act as a manager.
