Gordon Institute of Business Science

Welcome to the Gordon Institute of Business Science

The University of Pretoria's Gordon Institute of Business Science (GIBS) is a leading business school in the heart of Illovo, Johannesburg, close to the Sandton business hub. We offer academic programmes as well as a wide range of executive courses which can be custom-designed to suit specific company needs. GIBS is a faculty of the University of Pretoria.

For further information please visit: www.GIBS.co.za

Faculty regulations and information

The rules for degrees and the diploma here published are subject to change and can be amended prior to the commencement of the academic year.

Please note: Due to the continuous restructuring of the Faculty and the accompanying phased-in introduction of modules and credits, some of the information in this publication may not fully reflect the most recent developments in the Faculty. Problems that are experienced as a result of this situation may be taken up with GIBS.

Admission

Any person who wishes to register at GIBS for the first time, or after an interruption of studies, should apply or reapply for admission.

Selection

A selection procedure takes place prior to admission. Application forms are available at www.GIBS.co.za.

General

The Dean has the right of authorisation regarding matters not provided for in the General Regulations or in the GIBS regulations.

Language of tuition

All GIBS modules will be conducted in English.

Amendment of regulations and fees

GIBS retains the right to amend the regulations and to change tuition fees without prior notification.

Please note: The fees advertised and thus levied in respect of a module or study programme presentation represents a combination of the costs associated with the formal services rendered (for example lectures, module material, field trips, simulations, etc.) as well as associated indirect overheads such as the provision of Information Centre and recreation facilities, security and cleaning services, electricity and water supply, etc. Therefore the fees in respect of a module or study programme presentation cannot simply be reconciled with visible services that are rendered in respect of such module or study programme.

1.1 Registration for a particular year of study

(Also consult General Regulation G.2)

At the beginning of an academic year, a student registers for all the modules he or she intends taking in that particular year. A student may also only register for modules that fit into the lecture, test and examination timetables. For renewal of registration, see General Regulation G.3 and for termination of registration, General

Regulation G.4.

1.2 Examinations

- i. A student is admitted to an examination only if the lecturer of that module in consultation with the Dean, certifies that the student has prepared himself or herself satisfactorily by due performance in his/her work and fulfilled the attendance requirements. Class attendance in all modules and for the full duration of all programmes is compulsory for all students.
- ii. The minimum mark to be admitted to an examination is 45%.
- iii. The examination dates are set at the beginning of each year. Students must make arrangements with their organisations to be available on those dates as no alternative dates are offered. Should a student be unable to write an examination for reasons of serious illness, family crisis or unavoidable travel outside of South Africa, the Programme Manager must be informed in writing, preferably before the examination date or, failing that, within three days of the examination.
- iv. A written application for an aegrotat examination must be made to the Programme Manager, accompanied by proof of the reason for missing the examination (for example medical certificate, copy of passport, subpoena). Aegrotat examinations are written in December. The examination papers (or orals) are completely different to the original papers. The applicant will be informed of the dates during the year.
- v. Case studies for examinations will be distributed an hour before each examination to allow for reading, under examination conditions, in the examination venue.
- vi. (Also consult General Regulation G.12.1 and G.12.2). As far as repetition of modules is concerned, General Regulation G.11.2 (c) does not apply to GIBS.

1.3 Pass requirements and subminimum in examinations

A final weighted average mark of at least 50% in a module is required to pass. A subminimum of 45% is required in the examination for each module. Should the student fail to achieve the required subminimum, the student will be considered to have failed the module. To pass the Master of Business Administration or the Postgraduate Diploma in Business Administration with distinction, a student must obtain a final weighted average mark of at least 75%.

1.4 Aegrotat examinations

(Also consult General Regulation G. 12, par. 5.1 and 5.2)

- i. A student who was prevented from preparing for an examination, or from sitting for it, owing to unforeseen circumstances or illness, may be granted permission by the Dean to write an aegrotat examination in the particular module(s).
- ii. An application to sit for an aegrotat examination, supported by applicable corroborative proof (e.g. an original medical certificate), must be submitted to the Programme Manager's office, not later than 3 (three) days after the module exam should have been written.
- iii. Once a student has sat for an examination, he or she may not afterwards apply for an aegrotat examination on the basis of unforeseen circumstances or illness.
- iv. A student who has been granted permission to write an aegrotat examination and then fails to write the examination, will not be allowed another opportunity to write any further examination in the specific module.
- v. GIBS does not offer supplementary examinations.

General

It is the responsibility of all students to familiarise themselves with the General and GIBS Regulations of the University, as well as the procedures, rules, and instructions pertaining to study at GIBS. Ignorance of the applicable regulations, rules and instructions, or the incorrect interpretation thereof will not be accepted as an excuse for not complying with the stipulations of such regulations, rules and instructions.

Application of old and new regulations

(See General Regulation G.5)

Subject to transitional measures laid down by GIBS, a student must complete his or her degree in accordance with the regulations that were applicable when he or she first registered for a specific field of study or specialisation. If a student interrupts his or her studies or changes a field of study or specialisation, the regulations applicable in the following year in which studies are resumed, or the field of study is changed, apply.

Doctorate

DBA (07264003)

Duration of study 2 years

Programme information

The DBA (Doctor of Business Administration) is a doctoral degree with a focus on application. Students submit an independent thesis on an area of research that is of interest to practitioners. The doctorate is the terminal academic degree, and it is expected that the thesis will build on existing scholarly work. Students who are accepted onto the DBA will be offered support through online and contact sessions, and it is expected that they will also contribute to their peer community.

Admission requirements

- An MBA degree from a recognised tertiary institution
- Familiarity with basic statistics.

Additional requirements

An application pack comprising the following must reach the Director of Research at GIBS before the due date:

- A completed and signed hard copy of the application form and contract.
- An application fee relevant for the year of admission, payable to the Gordon Institute of Business Science.
- Official academic transcripts of all academic qualifications obtained to date. (Please note that a degree certificate is not a transcript.)
- A 20-page research proposal, containing:
 - The research question;
 - A concise review of the literature most relevant to the research;
 - The proposed research design;
 - The proposed data source(s) and data gathering strategy.
- Reports from two independent professional referees with whom the candidate is well acquainted, commenting on the candidate's suitability for advanced academic study towards a doctorate. The signed referees reports should be marked "Admissions and the year of study" and sent directly to the Director of Research.
- Successful candidates will be required to pay a non-refundable deposit relevant to the year of application, deductible from their subsequent tuition fees.
- Assessments will be conducted to establish if candidates are capable of doctoral study. Continued study on the doctoral programme will be contingent upon meeting the requirements of the assessment.

Research information

Progress on the research will be guided by a supervisor and monitored through regular engagement with the student. In order to complete the research, candidates need to share their research, at a practitioner-based forum.

The completed research study must be presented in the form of a doctoral thesis. Manuscript based on the thesis must be prepared for submission to an accredited academic journal, local or international, for publication as an empirical research paper. The successful completion of the doctorate depends on having the academic publication accepted into the process of review, as well as passing the thesis.

Module content

This module examines statistical tools used in business decision-making. Statistical methods will be introduced in a non-technical manner and developed in business contexts. Topics will include understanding differences, predictions and associations when using statistical analysis for business decision-making. These techniques will underpin the use of univariate and multivariate techniques. Statistical computer packages play a major supporting role in statistical applications, and frequently-encountered spreadsheet and software packages will be utilised during the course of the module. You will learn how to interpret the information contained in management data, and to define and analyse management problems quantitatively. You will develop an intuitive understanding of statistical techniques through explanations of methods and interpretation of real business problems. Ultimately, if you need to consult experts in this area, you will be better able to select, evaluate and use their services.

Corporate finance encompasses what every general manager should know about finance. Its purpose is to provide an introduction to financial management that blends relevant theory with practical application. This course will equip you to participate fully and creatively in the resolution of many financial issues facing your organisation. The course has a number of parts: the use of financial statements to glean information about the firm and to plan future performance; raising capital, including whether the firm should rely on equity or debt financing, and what to distribute to owners in the form of dividends or share repurchase; allocating capital, including techniques for investment evaluation, and the rates of return projects must earn to create value; integrating the preceding material to examine motives and gains behind corporate restructuring including mergers and leveraged buyouts.

Module credits	16.00
Programmes	PGDip Business Administration Business Studies
Contact time	24 Hours
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S
Period of presentation	Semester 1 or Semester 2

Module content

This module aims: to expose students to some of the underlying philosophy of qualitative research and why this is relevant for research in Africa; to help students understand the difference between quantitative research and qualitative research; and to provide guidelines for conducting research using i) grounded theory ii) case study methods iii) narrative research. By the end of the module, students will: i) have an appreciation of the richness of qualitative research methodology, and will be better able to assess whether a qualitative research method is appropriate for their own research, ii) receive broad guidelines how to conduct rigorous qualitative research employing case study, grounded theory methods or narrative research, and iii) have practice designing and performing a qualitative research study.

Research design 795 (GIA 795)

Qualification	Postgraduate
Module credits	16.00
Programmes	PGDip Business Administration Business Studies
Contact time	24 Hours
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S
Period of presentation	Semester 1 or Semester 2

Module content

This module helps students to conceptualise a research design. It covers how the choice of a research design relates to the chosen analytic method (Qualitative Research, Quantitative Research or Mixed Methods). Students are expected to relate the research question to the research design and to justify the selection of a given design for a given problem. The objectives of the module are to help students: make informed decisions about their research design; and understand the implications of selecting a given research design in particular around the research questions that can be answered.

Module credits	12.00
Prerequisites	No prerequisites.
Contact time	28 contact hours per 3 week cycle
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S
Period of presentation	Semester 1 or Semester 2

Module content

A working knowledge of the law is an incredibly empowering tool. The law operates in the daily lives of all of us, as a natural product of our interaction with one another. Sometimes in our dealings with other people we encounter problems that may be brought about by any one of a variety of factors: incompetence, dishonesty and misunderstanding are the most common causes. The consequences of these problems can, at times, be rather severe. Business transactions, for example, carry high risks. The consequences of a mistake in the business world can be costly. Knowledge of the law becomes a very useful tool when it helps us to recognise the potential dangers so that we can avoid them, and equip us with a means of dealing with mistakes once they have already happened. A sound understanding of the law is both a privilege as well as an advantage in coping with the various problems that life in the business world may throw our way.

The course aims to equip candidates with an understanding of these dangers and an ability to identify what to do when things go wrong.

International business strategy 850 (GIA 850)

Qualification	Postgraduate
Module credits	12.00
Prerequisites	No prerequisites.
Contact time	28 contact hours per 3 week cycle
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S
Period of presentation	Semester 1 or Semester 2

Module content

The rationale for the course is that all businesses are increasingly exposed to the global context, whether in terms of their competitors, their markets or their supply chains. As such, it is incumbent upon all managers to have an appreciation of the opportunities and threats that exist in doing business on an international scale. To operate effectively in a global context, managers need to be able to evaluate differences between countries and the impacts of these differences on firm behaviour. This module aims to provide students with the skills necessary to develop global business strategies and meet the challenges entailed.

Period of presentation Semester 2

Module content

This module is designed to enable students to analyse business problems, derive appropriate solutions, and communicate them effectively. There are two parts to it:

Part A deals with the written analysis of business cases. Through classroom instruction and individual feedback, students learn to analyse a business case, generate and review solutions, and prepare a clear, logical written summary of their analysis. The skills learnt include the cognitive skills of analysing, evaluating and synthesising complex material, and the communication skills of presenting findings in oral and written English.

Part B applies the same skills to the analysis and solution of an actual business situation. Students are required to conduct research into a problem posed in a company. They analyse the problem, conduct the appropriate research in the industry, apply the models and techniques covered in their MBA core courses, and prepare a consulting report for presentation to management and faculty.

This module examines statistical tools used in business decision-making. Statistical methods will be introduced in a non-technical manner and developed in business contexts. Topics will include understanding the differences, predictions and associations when using statistical analysis for business decision making. These techniques will underpin the use of univariate and multivariate techniques. Statistical computer packages play a major supporting role in statistical applications, and frequently-encountered spreadsheet and software packages will be utilised during the module. You will learn how to interpret the information contained in management data, and to define and analyse management problems quantitatively. You will develop an intuitive understanding of statistical techniques through explanations of methods and interpretation of real business problems. Ultimately, if you need to consult experts in this area, you will be better able to select, evaluate and use their services.

Microeconomics: Prices and markets 862 (GIA 862)

Qualification	Postgraduate
Module credits	9.00
Contact time	28 contact hours per 3 week cycle
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S
Period of presentation	Semester 1 or Semester 2

Module content

This module introduces microeconomic theory and its application to real business situations. The aim of the module is to establish a rigorous appreciation for the main drivers of any business and to show how different variables will impact the company bottom line. The module begins by examining consumer demand and covers why consumers act in a particular way, how they may react to market changes and what strategies a company may undertake to maximise their revenue in both the short and the long term. The course then shifts to the production decisions of a company and examines in detail the different types of costs within an organisation, what variables positively and negatively affect these costs and how these costs can be managed to maximise profits and profitability. Different market structures are analysed to assist students in placing their firm and sector in an appropriate market structure thus providing useful insight into options regarding inter-firm rivalry, firm interdependence, and strategies to deal with competition from similar firms. The module is designed to give the student a set of tools, models and causal chains which will help them make more informed strategic decisions regarding: the pricing of their goods, their cost management, their competition strategies and options to maximise profitability.

Financial accounting 863 (GIA 863)

Qualification	Postgraduate
Module credits	9.00
Contact time	28 contact hours per 3 week cycle
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S

Period of presentation Semester 1

Module content

This module is designed to equip participants with the necessary skills to analyse and interpret financial information. An overview of the preparation of simple financial statements serves as the basis for understanding the uses and limitations of the financial reports that companies prepare for shareholders and other external agencies. Topics dealt with in-depth include the contents of financial reports, ratio analysis and cash flow analysis, in addition to specific techniques developed for prediction of financial failure and vulnerability to takeover. Actual financial statements are analysed, and participants are expected to be familiar with real cases in the current financial press. You will become familiar with how financial statements such as balance sheets, income statements, and cash flow statements are structured. Various methods of critically evaluating them in order to make conclusions about the company's financial strength or weakness, and future possibilities such as financial failure or the probability of takeover will be discussed.

Operations management 850 (GIB 850)

Qualification	Postgraduate
Module credits	9.00
Contact time	28 contact hours per 3 week cycle
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English

Academic organisation Gordon Institute of Business S

Period of presentation Semester 2

Module content

This course examines how an organisation's structures, systems and processes contribute to its competitive position. This involves management of the processes whereby inputs such as labour, materials and equipment are converted to products or services that meet customers' needs at an acceptable cost. Improving performance cross-functionally and across the value chain is an important focus. Topics include functional versus corporate operations strategy, operations' reactive role, service-delivery systems design, process choice, quality management and improving operations, time and productivity, aligning operations to markets, and the impact of technology developments on the service delivery system. You will be able to analyse an operating system's efficiency in terms of process design, capacity and quality of service, and make recommendations to improve its design or operation. You will have a greater appreciation of the need to manage integrated processes across the value chain to achieve business success.

Customer centric strategy 855 (GIB 855)

Qualification	Postgraduate
Module credits	12.00
Contact time	28 contact hours per 3 week cycle
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S
Period of presentation	Semester 1 or Semester 2

Module content

To create new wealth, an enterprise or start-up needs to be truly customer focused. What this means and how to go about achieving this is what this module is all about. First, we look at the principles and practice of customer-focused strategy, and how it differs from some of the traditional models being used, holding organisations back. Then, sessions will demonstrate how to uncover new “market spaces” and a tried and tested methodology called the “customer activity cycle” will be used to discover and uncover innovative products and services opportunities. The final part of the module looks at a systematic process for implementation of customer focus – i.e., making it happen. What shapes success and failure? What makes a person an energizer driving change? What kinds of teams are needed when, how to involve silos, how and with whom to partner? How to test new ideas, pace and prioritize, and how internal and market take-up and scale-up can be achieved and sustained.

Qualification	Postgraduate
Module credits	12.00
Contact time	28 contact hours per 3 week cycle
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S
Period of presentation	Semester 2

Module content

Manufacturing is often derided as a polluting activity responsible for much of the damage that has been done to the world's environment. Limiting the environmental damage of manufacturing (while continuing to benefit from the wealth it creates) has consequently become a central focus of policy makers and business executives, hence the growth of environmental laws (and taxes) governing manufacturing processes and manufactured products, and the associated setting of specific environmentally-based standards through manufacturing supply chains. This elective will focus on the latest legislative requirements governing manufacturing processes.

This course focuses on knowing oneself and the impact of one's history or background on business effectiveness in the environment in which the students are or will be working. This course is designed around a road trip undertaken by all students at the end of year one, and provides them with an opportunity to analyse the current dynamics, challenges, social and political nuances and the history of the area they visit. By immersing the students in the culture and history of the places they visit, this experiential approach is designed to illustrate how history shapes peoples' outlook and the way they feel, think and act, enabling them to comprehend what has made South Africa what it is today. The analytic framework is the political economy of business, economic inclusion and connectivity between the South African economy and the region, the continent and the world. Emphasis will be placed on the businesses driving the economic and social dynamics of the locations which are visited.

Dynamic markets encompass a broad range of countries that exhibit exciting economic growth prospects, have undergone significant political, social and cultural change and show encouraging signs of innovation along with policy and institutional developments to address the voids and complexities prevalent in these markets. Despite some progress, these fast growing markets tend to defy the norm of doing business.

In this integrative course students will be introduced to the particular opportunities and challenges of managing a business in countries where the accepted norms of doing business may not apply - countries that exhibit exciting growth opportunities, have undergone significant political social and cultural change, and show encouraging signs of innovation. The course will address political, social and cultural issues and the policy and institutional developments that address the complexities of these markets. Students will be given the skills to draw on the business functions introduced during the previous modules to execute effectively in environments where their business acumen has to be attuned to the unexpected and where outcomes that go well beyond the financial bottom line need to be considered.

Module content

In this module students will be introduced to micro-economic theory and its application to real business situations. The aim of the course is to establish a rigorous appreciation for the main drivers of any business and to show how different variables will impact the company bottom line. The course begins by examining consumer demand. Students will examine why consumers act in a particular way, how they may react to market changes and what strategies a startup company or corporate may undertake to maximise its revenue in both the short and the long term. The course then shifts to focus on the production decisions of a company and examines in detail the different types of costs within an organisation, what variables positively and negatively affect these costs and how these costs can be managed to maximise profits and profitability. Different market structures are analysed to assist students in placing their firm and sector in an appropriate market structure thus providing useful insight into options regarding inter firm rivalry, firm interdependence and strategies to deal with competition from similar firms. The course is designed to give the student a set of tools, models and causal chains which will help them make more informed strategic decisions regarding: the pricing of their goods, their cost management, their competition strategies and options to maximise profitability.

This module is designed to equip participants with the necessary skills to analyse and interpret financial information. An overview of the preparation of simple financial statements serves as the basis for understanding the uses and limitations of the financial reports that companies prepare for shareholders and other external agencies. Topics dealt with in-depth include the contents of financial reports, ratio analysis and cash flow analysis, in addition to specific techniques developed for prediction of financial failure and vulnerability to takeover. Actual financial statements are analysed, and participants are expected to be familiar with real cases in the current financial press. You will become familiar with how financial statements such as balance sheets, income statements, and cash flow statements are structured. Various methods of critically evaluating them in order to make conclusions about the company's strength or weaknesses, and future possibilities such as financial failure or the probability of takeover will be discussed.

In this course students will integrate the learning from all the other modules in the development of a business plan. The course will introduce them to the purpose and the structure of a business plan and aid them in developing a compelling and coherent business plan for their new business venture. The marketing plan is an important part of the final business plan and as such students are provided with the opportunity and the tools to practically apply marketing principles and practices in the development of a marketing plan for their business idea. In the process of developing their business plan they will be required to pitch their business idea to the class. The class and the lecturer will provide them with feedback that should assist in the further development and refinement of the plan. Students will closely examine all the different components of a business plan so as to fully understand what purpose each component serves, how it should be written and developed, and how each component relates to the other components of the plan. At the end of the module, the students will be required to present their business plan to a panel made up of investors, business people, consultants and academics. This will serve as a first round business plan presentation, the final presentation taking place immediately prior to graduation, after the integrative research report and the electives have been completed.

Qualification	Postgraduate
Module credits	9.00
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S
Period of presentation	Semester 1 or Semester 2

Module content

Dynamic markets encompass a broad range of countries that exhibit exciting economic growth prospects, have undergone significant political, social and cultural change and show encouraging signs of innovation along with policy and institutional developments to address the voids and complexities prevalent in these markets. Despite some progress, these fast growing markets tend to defy the norm of doing business. In this integrative module students will be introduced to the particular opportunities and challenges of managing a business in countries where the accepted norms of doing business may not apply - countries that exhibit exciting growth opportunities, have undergone significant political social and cultural change, and show encouraging signs of innovation. The module will address political, social and cultural issues and the policy and institutional developments that address the complexities of these markets. Students will be given the skills to draw on the business functions introduced during the previous modules to execute effectively in environments where their business acumen has to be attuned to the unexpected and where outcomes that go well beyond the financial bottom line need to be considered.

Entrepreneurship 1: Process, creativity and innovation 861 (GIE 861)

Qualification	Postgraduate
Module credits	9.00
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S

Period of presentation Semester 1 or Semester 2

Module content

In this module students will be introduced to the process that an entrepreneur engages in when launching a new business venture. In examining this process students will examine what other local and global entrepreneurs have done in establishing their business so as to learn from the success and failure of others and to begin to map out a path for themselves. Students will also be required to examine their own strengths, weaknesses and personal preferences so as to develop a high level of self-awareness that will enable them to critically consider whether they truly wish to embark on an entrepreneurial journey and so that they can begin to create an entrepreneurial development plan. The aim of the module is to provide students with an appreciation of how an entrepreneur needs to integrate different skills, disciplines and perspectives in identifying an opportunity for a new business and acting on that opportunity to launch and grow the venture. The module will introduce students to various frameworks for new venture creation so that they can understand and appreciate how the other MBA modules will contribute to their development as entrepreneurs. Students will be introduced to the principles of creativity and to frameworks for understanding how innovation creates value and competitive advantage in a business context.

Business finance 862 (GIE 862)

Qualification Postgraduate

Module credits 9.00

Language of tuition Module is presented in English

Academic organisation Gordon Institute of Business S

Period of presentation Semester 1 or Semester 2

Module content

In this module students will be introduced to the principles of finance that are relevant for a startup venture. The module will provide an introduction to the theories and practical realities pertaining to raising and structuring finance, investment decisions and managing working capital within early-stage ventures. In addition to this the module will introduce students to the principles and practices of valuing young companies. The first part of the module will focus on raising capital, including whether the firm should rely on equity or debt financing, and what different financial structures will mean for the management, profitability and sustainability of the entity over time. The second part of the module will focus on investment decision making within an early stage venture to highlight how entrepreneurs can use different tools and techniques to make wise investment choices. The third part of the module will focus on the management of working capital to maximise profitability and minimise risk in an early stage venture. Finally students will be required to value early stage investments and negotiate on a price for an entity in which they have an interest.

Entrepreneurship 2: Business plan development 863 (GIE 863)

Qualification Postgraduate

Module credits 9.00

Language of tuition Module is presented in English

Academic organisation Gordon Institute of Business S

Period of presentation Semester 1

Module content

In this module students will integrate the learning from all the other modules in the development of a business plan. The module will introduce them to the purpose and the structure of a business plan and aid them in developing a compelling and coherent business plan for their new business venture. The marketing plan is an important part of the final business plan and as such students are provided with the opportunity and the tools to practically apply marketing principles and practices in the development of a marketing plan for their business idea. In the process of developing their business plan they will be required to pitch their business idea to the class. The class and the lecturer will provide them with feedback that should assist in the further development and refinement of the plan. Students will closely examine all the different components of a business plan so as to fully understand what purpose each component serves, how it should be written and developed, and how each component relates to the other components of the plan. At the end of the module, the students will be required to present their business plan to a panel made up of investors, business people, consultants and academics. This will serve as a first round business plan presentation, the final presentation taking place immediately prior to graduation, after the integrative research report and the electives have been completed.

Contemporary issues in supply chain management 880 (GIE 880)

Qualification	Postgraduate
Module credits	12.00
Contact time	28 contact hours per 3 week cycle
Language of tuition	Module is presented in English
Academic organisation	Gordon Institute of Business S
Period of presentation	Semester 2

Module content

The supply chain plays a vital role in the success of organisations. Supply chain management is responsible for ensuring the flow of products, information and money to ensure value is added to the end consumers and return on capital employed for the entire supply chain is improved. As the networks become more complex, with more variability and the customer's expectation of shorter lead times, there is a need to give students a more in-depth understanding of this function, viewed from a systems perspective. This means the focus has to change from make and sell what can be made (push-and -promote) to make and sell what can be sold (position-and-pull). More detail is provided in the elective manual.

Module content

In this module students will be equipped to execute their Integrative business research project. Each student's Integrative business research report will be focused on a key relationship or research question that relates directly to their new business idea. The module will focus on formulation of a research question, population and sampling concerns, the use of literature reviews, various qualitative and quantitative research methodologies including documentary research, surveys, questionnaire design and interviewing techniques. The analysis of data and research report writing will also be covered. The research report will serve as a means for students to deepen their insights into the market that they are preparing to enter or to help them understand a key relationship affecting their business. As such the module will prepare a student to do research that is of both practical and intellectual value.
